House passes jobs package

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
United Press International

WASHINGTON — With its Democratic leadership arguing the bill is "bread and butter, not pork," the House passed a bipartisan $2.2 billion jobs package Thursday and sent it to the Senate for hoped-for action before Easter.

The vote was 224 to 95. Sponsors say the bill will create up to 600,000 jobs. Critics say it is a "pork barrel" measure that will benefit sponsoring congressmen more than their constituents.

The House passed amendments that added $400 million for mass transit projects and $200 million for health services to the $4.6 billion measure that was recently drafted and approved by the House Appropriations Committee after President Reagan agreed to the measure in principle.

Before final passage, the House also adopted an amendment by Rep. Bob Edgar, D-Pa., requiring that 75 percent of the funds be spent in pockets of high unemployment, defined as areas with joblessness at 90 percent of the national average.

This means an area would have to have about 9 percent unemployment to be eligible.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright said 2 million people are homeless and soup kitchens have been opened in all major cities.

Replying to charges the bill contained favors, the appropriations committee members wrote into the measure for themselves. Wright said: "This is bread and butter. This is not a pork barrel. This is a bill that provides help where help is needed and it provides it in a timely way."

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., senior Republican on the committee, lost an attempt to send the bill back to committee on a vote of 256-158.

Conte said the bill was good "as long as you were in the butcher shop when the hog was being slaughtered and you were able to get a nice chunk of bacon to take home — But, you guys and gals who weren't in the butcher shop ... you're going home with pretzels, not bacon."

Rep. Mark Siljander, R-Mich., for example, complained that it provides $10 million for improving Amtrak facilities in "relatively affluent Hyannis, Mass., but 'not a nickel in this whole pork-barrel legislation' for Benton Harbor, Mich., which has 33 percent unemployment. The measure requires Senate action, but Senate GOP leader Howard Baker has promised to push for passage before Congress adjourns for an Easter recess March 25. House Speaker Thomas O'Neill told reporters he expects the bill will be followed by a "Phase Two" package of mortgage and housing assistance.

"The human side is being hurt badly even though the indicators have turned around," O'Neill said, referring to a key economic report Wednesday that indicated the recovery has begun.

The biggest items in the measure, entitled the 1983 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill are: community development block grants for public works, highways, demolition and site improvement, and parks, $1.2 billion; Army Engineers flood control projects, $484 million; military family housing, $243 million; Small Business Administration direct loans, $200 million; rural water and sewer grants, $200 million; and Economic Development Administration public works grants, $200 million.

"What a paradox it is that we are here talking about spending $4.6 billion we don't have on programs we worked for two years trying to cut," Gramm said.

More military advisers going to El Salvador

By RICHARD C. GROSS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will increase the number of U.S. military advisers in El Salvador to the maximum of 55 but has "absolutely no plans" to send in U.S. combat troops, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday.

"We will maximize the use of our self-imposed limit," Speakes told reporters in Los Angeles where Reagan delivered a speech. "As far as combat troops, rule them out."

"There are absolutely no plans to use combat troops and I don't think the president would look with favor on that at all," Speakes said.

Both Speakes and a Pentagon official said the administration still is considering raising the limit above 55 in a drive to improve the ability of Salvadoran government forces to fight mounting attacks by leftist guerrillas.

"We will move up to 55, and see then how that works and if we can make it work more efficiently," Speakes said.

"We will see about it then."

The Pentagon official told reporters the administration may shift its tactics and allow the advisers to move into the countryside to train Salvadoran troops at the brigade level to fight leftist guerrillas.

This, he said, would require more than 55 trainers.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger already has told Congress "tens or twenties" more advisers may be needed.

"No decision has been made to change the role of the combat advisers," Speakes said. "I won't rule it out or in."

Speakes stood by the administration contention that El Salvador needs 500 million immediately in new military aid, although Salvadoran officials have denied they are facing critical supply shortages. "We have made our decision that there is a critical situation concerning resupply," he said. "It is a genuine emergency," a senior State Department official agreed. The president, he said, "is concerned and determined to put our policy back on track, to give them the wherewithal they need."

The number of U.S. military advisers in El Salvador has averaged 37 but now stands at 45, including 40 Army and five Navy, plus a six-man military group that administers military assistance to the country, officials said. El Salvador has a total force of 33,000 men, including a 22,000-man army.

Speakes would not say whether the White House or the Pentagon made the decision to build up the force of advisers.

Reagan is scheduled to meet Friday in San Francisco with Weinberger, Secretary of State George Shultz and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan for a "wide-ranging overview" of administration foreign and defense policies.

Speakes said decisions were "yet unmade" on any specific alterations in the advisers' role.

Senator wants Burford fired

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican senator Thursday urged President Reagan to replace Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne Burford, while a Democratic congressman said a special prosecutor should be appointed to investigate possible criminal activity by the agency in cleaning up toxic waste dumps.

Sources told United Press International Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., chairman of one of six House subcommittees investigating EPA, Friday will call for amending federal law to allow for appointment of a special prosecutor to independently probe the agency.

Congressional sources said Florio would send a letter to Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, suggesting there is justification to amend the Special Prosecutor's Act to cover Mrs. Burford.

The act, a post-Watergate reform, triggers appointment of special prosecutors where there are allegations of wrongdoing against Cabinet-level officials or other specific executive branch officials, but does not apply to EPA.

One source said, Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., became the first Republican senator to join congressional critics in calling for Mrs. Burford's ouster. But Mrs. Burford said she has "no plans to resign."

"This current impasse will not likely be resolved as long as Mrs. Burford remains the target of partisan hostility and as long as serious doubts remain as to her commitment to vigorous enforcement of environmental policy," Boschwitz wrote Reagan.

"I have no plans to resign," Mrs. Burford told reporters after testifying on the EPA budget on Capitol Hill. "The agency is in a very difficult situation at the present time, and I hope to provide the leadership."

Asked about Boschwitz's statement, she first indicated she did not know who he is or where he is from.

Appropriations bill torpedoed heavily

House votes to send school funding bill back to committee

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — The House torpedoed final consideration of a $195 million public school appropriations bill Thursday after Republican leaders said indications that an economic recovery may be brewing warrant a new look at fiscal 1984 revenue projections.

Members voted 52-18 to yank back to the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee the school funding measure, which would allocate $20 million less than was made available for the current year.

Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, JEAC co-chairman, said lawmakers should re-examine the revenue estimates of January in hope more money may be projected as available for FY '84, which begins July 1, 1983.

Freshman Democrats charged GOP leaders engineered withdrawal of the bill not because they wanted to upgrade the revenue projection, but because they knew opponents of the $195 million appropriation had enough votes to kill it.

Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, chairman of the Joint Revenue Projections Committee, said the panel would convene Friday to hear from economic experts.

Brooks said it's certain that Friday's development will lengthen the legislative session, which usually ends in the final week of March.

The Gooding lawmaker said he was summoned into the office of House Speaker T.W. Silvers, R-Twin Falls, Thursday morning to talk about reopening the original revenue projection — which amounts to $413 million.

The idea then was endorsed during a late-morning caucus of the 51 majority Republicans, Brooks said.

Although optimism abounded

Valley educators sigh with relief

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Across the Magic Valley, school superintendents sighed with relief Thursday at word that the Legislature has halted a proposed $20-million cut in public-school funding for next year — at least temporarily.

"That would have meant a $750,000 loss for us, and approximately 70 percent of it would have had to come out of teacher salaries," said Steve Youngerman, the Jerome superintendent.

"I'm not one to complain usually," he said. "The legislators give us what they can, and we should make do. But this proposal would have created terrible overcrowding problems for us."

"You can't help but cry out," Youngerman said.

Because of high teacher-student ratios, the state Department of Education has already issued a formal warning to Central Elementary School in Jerome. And Youngerman said the proposed public-school appropriation would have created more havoc with that situation.

Facing a similar situation is the Cassia County School District, where Malta and Southwest elementary schools also have received warnings for large class loads.

"We reduced staff four years ago, and since then, enrollment has grown continually," said Norman Hurst, the Cassia superintendent.

"A $20-million cut in school funding would have meant a loss to us of about $450,000," he said. "The only way you can make that up is by reducing staff, and that means worse pupil-to-teacher ratios."

Briefly

Pope insulted by executions

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Pope John Paul II's Central American tour suffered a major "insult" Thursday as Guatemala — ignoring Vatican appeals — executed 11 men at dawn and cast a pall on the pope's impending visit to that country.

The firing squad executions were regarded as a direct rebuff of John Paul's plea for peace and set up a potentially explosive confrontation for his visit to Guatemala Monday, the sixth day of his eight-day tour of Central America.

The pope, who exhorting 500,000 people at a mass to help the church "eliminate injustice ... hatred and violence," made no direct mention of the killings. But in an evening meeting with the Interamerican Court of Human Rights, he endorsed its work and said members should seek "sanctions" against those who offend the dignity of man.

OPEC ministers disagree

LONDON (UPI) — Eight OPEC oil ministers failed to agree on a moderate oil price cut at a mini-summit Thursday amid indications non-OPEC Britain was the major stumbling block in the cartel's efforts to avert a global price war.

"There has been no agreement," Algerian Oil Minister Belkacem Nabi said as he left the OPEC talks at the London residence of United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Saeed Otaiba. "We will meet again tomorrow."

Arab sources said meetings would continue through the evening between the OPEC ministers of Saudi Arabia, Algeria, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Venezuela, Nigeria, Indonesia and Libya.

Margaret Heckler confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 82-3 Thursday to confirm Margaret Heckler, a staunch opponent of abortion, as head of the massive Department of Health and Human Services.

Mrs. Heckler, chosen by President Reagan to take over the federal government's largest agency, will become his second woman cabinet secretary. She is expected to be sworn in shortly.

The three votes against her were cast by Republicans — conservative North Carolinians Jesse Helms and John East, who said she was too liberal, and Bob Packwood of Oregon, the Senate's major spokesman supporting a woman's right to have an abortion.

The diminutive 51-year-old former Massachusetts congresswoman succeeds Richard Schweiker, who took a job with an insurance trade group.

Greeks protest military bases

ATHENS (UPI) — Tens of thousands of demonstrators denouncing "American blackmail" poured through Athens streets Thursday, demanding removal of U.S. military bases from Greece and creation of a nuclear-free zone in the Balkans. Greek peace movement demonstrators were joined by protesters from labor-unions, political parties and student organizations for the rally at Constitution Square opposite Parliament.

Traffic was blocked off shortly after sundown as the tens of thousands of demonstrators marched with signs that read, "Out with foreign bases — No to nuclear missiles" and, "No to American blackmail."

Prosecution rests case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The prosecution rested its case against Edwin Wilson Thursday in the second day of the ex-CIA agent's murder-conspiracy trial for plotting the $11 million assassination of an opponent of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi.

Chief Prosecutor E. Lawrence Barcella completed the government's case after calling three witnesses and presenting 37 exhibits.

The trial is Wilson's third in less than six months on Libyan-related offenses.

Wilson and co-defendant Frank Terpil, a fugitive last seen a year ago in Beirut, are accused of hiring Rafael Quijano in 1976 to assassinate Omar Abdullah Muhyash/Tor Khadafi; Muhyash, an original member of the Khadafi's Libyan Revolutionary Council, defected in 1975.

Fourth bomb discovered

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A fourth dynamite bomb was found Thursday outside a fashionable department store, within walking distance of three hotels where similar bombs were discovered four days ago.

An employee of Neiman Marcus Co. discovered the bomb housed in a cardboard box wrapped with duct tape — the same type package used to conceal bombs found outside the Stardust, Frontier and Desert Inn Hotels Monday.

"The fourth bomb is similar to those placed outside the strip hotels," J.A. Jerry Cunningham said. "It was an explosive device. A man, who works at Neiman Marcus discovered it about 8 a.m., before the shopping mall opened."

"There may be more," said Cunningham.

The FBI also ruled out prison escapee Dennis Waugh as a suspect in the case.

Waugh, convicted of trying to extort $10 million from five "strip" hotels in 1981, escaped from a federal prison in Boron, Calif., Feb. 21.

Federal authorities in Boron confirmed that Waugh surrendered to U.S. marshals in Los Angeles Tuesday, the day after Las Vegas police said he was a suspect in the dynamite bombs found at three hotels.

"Dennis Waugh is back in custody and I don't consider him a suspect. I am 99.9 percent convinced he is pretty well eliminated," said FBI agent Joe Vablosky.

among GOP leaders about recent upward surges in national economic indicators. Many House members said a recovery is not underway and may not occur at all during FY '84.

Brooks said he could not predict whether the revised revenue projection would be set at a higher or lower figure. If there's a little change, he said, the Legislature may be forced to consider new revenue-raising measures to cover a higher school appropriation than $195 million — support for which seemed to be insufficient — during the floor debate Thursday.

Revenue Projections members may be able to announce their revised calculations early next week, Brooks said. Until then, the budget-setting committee will be "back at ground zero" and powerless to act, said JFAC member Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer.

Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, said it's a waste of time to essentially return the Legislature to the embryo stages of its budgeting process unless there's reason to believe significant amounts of additional revenues can be found under the current tax structure.

First-term Rep. Larry Echolaw, D-Pocatello, a JFAC member, asserted supporters of dispatching the bill back to committee was meant to disguise a lack of support to pass the measure.

"Let's call a spade a spade," Echolaw said. "The reason is because the votes are not here on the floor to pass that bill."

Those who voted unsuccessfully to keep the bill on the floor included Democrats fighting to kill the $195 million proposal outright, plus conservative Republicans who wanted to set the low figure.

Echolaw said the higher revenue projections originally made by Gov. John Evans' budget office for fiscal '84 were "on target" and should be taken to heart by lawmakers.

An updated comparison of the governor's revenue projection and the $413 million figure being used by GOP legislators puts the chief executive's estimate at about $428 million, according to Larry Schlicht, deputy administrator of the state Financial Management Division.

Reaction

"We need at least a 3-percent increase in our total budget just to maintain the existing salary schedule,"

Hurst also criticized some proposals before the Legislature that would call on residents of school districts to support their own schools through additional override levies.

The Cassia district already has relied on annual overrides for about 20 years, he said.

"To pick up this kind of a tab, you're talking about doubling our current overrides," he said. "I would certainly hate to call upon the people to come up with that, especially through property taxes."

A similar story exists in Twin Falls, where Superintendent James Sawin says a $195 million public-school appropriation would result in a loss of at least $900,000 for Twin Falls. He said Thursday that there is no way to make up that kind of a difference through cost savings or maintenance changes.

Bliss Superintendent Dick Flores agrees, even though the potential loss to his district is only $33,000.

"But a $33,000 loss in our $458,000 budget is a lot of money to us," he said. "It would have to be translated into a loss of programs."

He cited the following possible cuts and their accompanying savings for his district: all transportation, $6,000; the entire music program, $14,000; the entire athletic program, $10,000; and textbooks and supplies, $5,000.

"Like other districts, we have made no decisions about these," he said. "We won't until we see what the final decision is for school funding."

But the loss of school support means more than just reduced programs and staffing, Youngerman said. "We are the third-largest employer in Jerome," Youngerman said. "For every dollar raised locally, we bring $3 into the community."

Although such large education cuts, legislators would be affecting the community's economy by taking money away from businesses and banks.

"Another significant problem would be staff morale," Youngerman said.

"We have dreams for improving education — of making life in general better for the future," he said. "It is true heartbreak to tell your staff that you have to throw those out the window and even regress to a lower level than you have managed to attain."

Santa Monica pier pounded

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — For decades the century-old Santa Monica pier served as a location for dozens of movie and TV shows but now much of it is gone, pounded into the Pacific by 20-foot waves. The surf tore away another 400-foot section of the recreational pier Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, taking with it two giant cranes, a boat derrick, three cars and a pickup truck.

The latest collapse cut the pier to half its original 1,500-foot length but caused no injuries. Last month about 100 feet of the 106-year-old landmark were destroyed by breakers during another storm.

A city spokesman said the historic carousel and Moby's Dock Restaurant were still standing.

Storm's fury leaves 19 dead

By DOUGLAS DOWIE
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan Thursday flew over some of the damage left by a fierce storm that pummeled California with tornadoes, floods and destructive surf, then promised quick federal assistance to storm victims.

Although the storm's main fury appeared over scattered showers, a new levee and dam breaks threatened to flood more homes. A weaker storm was expected to hit over the weekend.

The storm series, which began in Northern California late last week and hit the southern part of the state late Monday, has killed at least 19 people and forced more than 10,000 out of flooded homes.

In the Sierra Nevada, where the storm dropped a heavy mantle of snow, several roads remained blocked by rockslides. Among them was Highway 140, the route that Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip planned to take to Yosemite on Saturday. Officials said the royal party, earlier forced by the storm to cancel a sail up the Central California coast, would probably have to take an alternate route.

A state Office of Emergency Services spokesman, meanwhile, said storm damage estimates received so far totaled about $158 million, with losses to public property accounting for about 40 percent.

IRS tip-income rule angers, but is right

In a recent cartoon, a couple of wise old birds are talking. One tells the other he is going to sue the Internal Revenue Service. "On what charge," asks the other?

"Following too close."

That appears to be the motive behind the developing drive of waiters, waitresses and bartenders to repeal the IRS's latest decision to monitor the gross sales of many restaurants and bars. In an effort to collect taxes from employees who receive "tip" income.

No one denies that these food-service workers often depend on tip income to make ends meet economically. Under the present IRS laws, such employees are supposed to report their income and pay taxes on it. But it is also well-known that a huge proportion of tip income is going unreported.

Put simply, the IRS knows—as do many citizens and the workers themselves—that large numbers of waiters, waitresses and bartenders are cheating quietly on their income taxes by failing to report the income.

The new IRS rule is designed to allow it to better monitor the receipts of such workers, by giving the IRS a guide figure—a restaurant's gross sales—against which to compare its employees' wages.

In one respect, the new rule is unfair: It assumes all tip-income employees take in tips equal to about 8 percent. That figure may well be too high, and the IRS should consider adjusting it.

But we suspect the howl among these workers is not only because of the percent figure, but because many of them are simply getting away with not reporting income at all.

In effect, the IRS has developed a method of "following close," and the "followed" are getting nervous. You would, too, if you were about to be audited.

These workers do depend on their tips. But we don't think that income should be treated as a "gift," which is the employee's "right," on which he or she should not pay taxes.

To our way of thinking, the IRS applies all kinds of compliance procedures to businesses and individuals alike. Tip-income employees have no right to think they should continue to be allowed to escape paying taxes, now that the IRS has developed a method that will aid collection.

The bottom line is that if tip-income employees were complying with the law, this compliance rule wouldn't be necessary.

Let Swan Falls ruling stand

An open letter to Gov. John Evans:
As a non-profit corporation whose purpose is to secure and enhance the civic and social welfare of the residents and visitors to Hagerman Valley and Gooding County through organized, informed and responsible community action, we have followed with great interest the public discussions concerning Swan Falls Dam. We are of the opinion that Idaho is now at the crossroads and must make some forward-looking decisions concerning the utilization of our water resources in the balanced development of agriculture and industry in Idaho. We would oppose at this time any action by any agency of the State of Idaho to set aside the Supreme Court ruling that Idaho Power Co. has a right to 8,400 cubic feet per second at Swan Falls on the Snake River. Our position considers the following factors:

1. This situation developed because the Department of Water Resources granted permits to divert water in excess of the amount of water available. A day of reckoning was bound to happen. It happened with Idaho Power and the agricultural community. The situation that now exists demands that the needs and policies governing the use and care of our water resources be re-examined. This resource belongs to all the citizens of the State of Idaho and must not be set aside for any one industry at this time through hysteria action.

2. We acknowledge the importance of agriculture in the historical development of Idaho. Turning desert into irrigated cropland required perseverance of the human spirit, incredible vision and creativity, and immense human labor. Also essential were adequate supplies of water and cheap electric energy. Any additional agricultural development in Idaho will require access to water and electricity. It will not be cheap hydro-electric energy. On the contrary, the vicious circle of high-lift pumping from the Snake River (less water flowing in the river but more energy needed) will have a substantial impact on our electric energy rates. Moreover, it will have substantial negative impacts on our family farms. We would oppose the development of new agricultural lands in Idaho until all agriculture subsidies have been terminated.

3. Notwithstanding the contributions agriculture has made to Idaho, isn't it time to look to other potentials Idaho has to offer for economic growth and progress? Indeed, you have been promoting Idaho as an ideal location for new high-tech industry. The bases for such promotion include a superlative environment (if we don't destroy it) for outdoor family activities and relatively low-cost electric energy. The contributions this type of industrial development can make to Idaho's continued economic growth are almost unlimited, including the payment of sales tax.

4. Under no circumstances should Idaho go into the business of hydro-electric generation and sales. The "can of worms" opened through State purchase of Swan Falls Dam would only start with the taxpayer burden of yet another bureaucracy. That scenario is utterly unacceptable to those of us who want less government interference in our daily lives.

5. Stockholders of Idaho Power would, quite properly, be outraged at any proposal from the political sector to essentially condemn a capital fixture. This condemnation would ensure a happy retirement for the legion of lawyers who would wage a battle royale for years. The Idaho taxpayer would finance Idaho Power Co.'s attorneys and the Idaho taxpayer would finance the Idaho Attorney General's office. When does the resulting increases in electric rates and state taxes?

Idaho must retain the natural assets that bring us high technology industry for continued economic growth while ensuring that existing family farms have an opportunity for fair profits. At the same time, our glorious environment will attract increasing numbers of tourists (be they fishermen, campers or whitewater rafters) from states that have not exercised foresight and care in using their natural resources.

Tax rule uses intimidation

An open letter to Senators James A. McClure and Steve Symms and Congressman George V. Hansen: While I recognize that the intent of our tax system is to be equitable to all, I feel that the new tax regulation imposed upon food service employees falls far short of this goal. As you know, the IRS is now requiring restaurant owners to identify 8 percent of their gross revenues as tips, upon which taxes must later be paid by employees.

As a waitress working in Twin Falls, I would like to express my concern over the inequities I feel are inherent in this new law.

First and foremost, I can think of no other occupation or business that is required to claim a minimum income with total disregard for money actually received. The fact that food service employees are being subjected to this discriminatory regulation is both disruptive and unfair.

Tips cannot be considered a guaranteed wage. There are many factors that contribute to the amount of money earned, and therefore one general tax law is extremely inappropriate. Tips constantly fluctuate, and our present economic situation coupled with the new tax regulation is having an adverse effect for many restaurant employees.

Another result of this regulation concerns employers reviewing the confidential tax calculations of waiters and waitresses. I consider this practice to be a violation of my privacy, and further, it is non-conducive to harmonious and trusting relationships between worker and management.

Job satisfaction is greatly reduced while considering that non-tipping customers in effect end up costing the waitperson money. This is discouraging, but it is also simultaneously placing an unnecessary burden on customers who are aware of the current tax law and therefore the apparent necessity of tipping.

I realize that the IRS has always considered 100 percent of tip-income as taxable, but to insure collecting these taxes by means of coercion and intimidation is a serious threat to the principles of our democratic society. It does appear that the prophetic 1984 is near, and that the government has lost all faith in its people.

I urge you to repeal this new tax regulation which is most discriminatory to a certain segment of the business world. Each individual would still be responsible if we fail to report income.

Letters/ Children's future depends on "quality education"

No minority on education

I would like to thank The Times-News for the fine editorial defending the IEA regarding the educational funding needs of our state, and also special thanks and support to Gov. John Evans for vetoing the House Bill to reduce our public school appropriations.

It seems clear to me that House Speaker Tom Stivers doesn't completely understand or care about the total effects this bill would have on our state's quality of education. As a parent, I am concerned that with the current economy our nation is in, our government officials are looking at education as a minor problem and feel that funding cuts can be made without serious complications.

I believe our schools cannot withstand more funding cutbacks. Our classrooms are overcrowded because of unshared building bonds, our kindergarten programs are being scheduled during summer months because of the lack of classrooms, and there is a growing shortage of teachers every year.

How much more are we, as parents and taxpayers, going to let our legislators rob our children and grandchildren of a quality education that they need and deserve?

I respectfully disagree with House Speaker Tom Stivers. I don't see myself as a "rabble-rousing minority." I see myself as a mother and taxpayer of this state and I should have the right to voice my concerns to my legislators. After all, we the people voted you into office to represent us.

I believe our children are our future and the quality education we give them will one day be the quality of government we will have to live with, so I ask each and every parent of this community and state to make your concerns for quality education known to your state legislators now. Our children's future and our depends on it.

Energy plan is decisive

I reach out to you with concern and interest directed toward the public knowledge concerning our energy needs for the next twenty years.

In the beginning of February, the Northwest Power Planning Council issued for the first-ever Draft Regional Energy Plan. This is the single most important energy decision ever produced in this region. It calls for nuclear and nuclear power plants—that is what we will get; if it contains conservation and renewable resources, that will be our future.

I have reviewed the Northwest Energy Planning Council's "Energy Alternative for Idaho" published by the Idaho Office of Energy, I. Kirt Hall, director in 1978. Contained in this publication is a letter from Governor Evans, which ends: "I hope readers of this booklet will take this potential seriously and help make Idaho a pacemaker among the fifty states in utilizing our alternative resources."

I am an Idaho resident, and have been all of my life. I feel that people who choose to live in this state have a responsibility to voice to live in this state and have a responsibility to voice their wants and opinions to the Northwest Power Council before the council makes their decision in late April.

It is our energy future that is being decided right now. I urge you, young and old, conservative and liberal, to voice your opinion and have a say in your energy future.

Look for other funding

I am writing concerning the "public" of public education. I was of the belief that public education meant education provided by and made possible through the local public and overall citizenry of Idaho.

Idaho schools, and public schools across America, for that matter, are public only in the fact that they do not charge outright tuition! Parents pay for activity fees, locker fees, book fees, home economics fees, music fees, towel fees, uniform fees, art fees, sports fees. Industrial art fees and parking fees. America expects it's youth to have a balanced education! Idaho legislators provide our youth with only finances to support reading, writing and arithmetic! Life's survival skills are learned in classes other than English and math! According to Idaho legislators (and we elected them), we parents must make up the balance of education!

YES! Idahoans have said they will not pay for education through unfair property taxes. But why have Idaho lawmakers abandoned public education support rather than finding alternate funding such as a 5 percent sales tax or taxing those who benefit from and demand quality education. Idaho corporations? Idaho's ability to fund education has been made public, as has the fact that Idaho is next to the bottom in comparison to the rest of the nation in actual support of public education. Idaho students deserve the same education Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and Montana students receive! Idaho students can receive that education only if lawmakers make it possible!

M-A-S-H bash was a party for our lost community

BOSTON — When it was finally over, when the helicopter had taken Hawkeye away, when the sets were dark in tens of millions of living rooms, and the glasses were washed from the parties, we'd all witnessed the breakup of a community.

That was what the M-A-S-H bash was about. Taking away the symbols of life and death, take away the message about peace and anti-war, take away the $450,000 commercials, take away the three-hanky ending, and the appeal of this 2 1/2-hour marathon leave-taking had to do with our sense of community.

The community of a bunch of Army medical people in Korea. The community of a bunch of actors in Los Angeles. The community of a nation of viewers.

Today we often use that word in strange, casual ways, to identify a special interest group like "the medical community," or "the arms-control community." But rarely when we mean a group whose special interest is in each other.

The word community was once rooted in geography, but we are uprooted. We move 12 times in a life. One generation follows frontiers, another follows jobs, houses, school systems.

The word community was once connected to long-term relationships, but we are disconnected. We live our lives increasingly as individuals. In 1930, less than 8 percent of us lived alone; in 1980, almost a quarter of us did.

Yet the need for belonging, the need for shared enterprise and interests, is no less attractive to us because it's elusive. We may be as nostalgic for community as we are for family.

I thought about this in our own private M-A-S-H bash, thought about how many kinds of community this moment represented. If the Walltons were our foster family, perhaps the M-A-S-H troops were our foster community. Perhaps television is even our foster community.

We create, or try to recreate, ways to group in our fragmented world. The characters of M-A-S-H—a band of Americans in Korea, a band of healers in the midst of destruction—were a model in some ways. Theirs was the kind of community created in response to the chaos or threat of the world. Theirs was a group that tried to establish and hold onto its own values in alien territory.

Our own immigrant ancestors created this sort of refuge of familiarity in a strange land. People who had little in common in their homelands banded together in Little Italies, German towns, Chinatowns.

In every war, strangers forge ties as intimate as those of marriage. There is a glue in danger and in emergencies; those who are dependent upon each other for life itself shortcut the process of creation.

But the east, like the characters of this show, represented a special kind of community. Today our sense of belonging to a neighborhood is weaker. But perhaps our sense of belonging to a work place is stronger. Many of us were more touched by the real-life good-byes of co-workers in Hollywood than by the TV good-byes.

In our workaday world, co-workers share a context and interest. We know each other through daily bulletins on our lives and through a common purpose. For many, the best part of work is what author Robert Schrank called "schmooze," and the hardest part of retirement is the loss of community.

What of the third kind of community—the television audience? I am not sure whether there is such a thing as a "community of viewers." A community requires some participation, some active involvement with real-life others. Television-watching is a solitary experience, yet in some ways a shared one.

From time to time there is an "event"—a Super Bowl, a "Who Killed J.R.?"—a M-A-S-H—that becomes an once larger and more personal. The TV set then is a common text. We take this most social, even anti-social, box and make a party of it. Our desire for a social life in the largest sense wins out over the centrifugal force of individualism and its toy, television.

Well, this happened again on Monday night. Funny how we get together to say good-bye.

Legislator proposes state 'Piggy Bank'

Friday, March 4, 1983 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-5

Idaho

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Stung by the lack of an emergency fund during the state's current fiscal nightmare, the Legislature is toying with a plan to set up a "piggy bank" in which any surplus money would be stored for use in future dire times.

Dollars left over from the state general account at the end of a fiscal year would be transferred automatically to the contingency reserve. The funds would be used only to offset emergency reductions in state

Legislature

The chief worry voiced by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee when it introduced the proposal Thursday was that it would be difficult to keep future legislatures from "raiding" the account for other purposes.

When the state enjoyed multimillion-dollar surpluses early last decade. "The great problem was that they could not decide how to give it back (to taxpayers), so they spent the stuff," said Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise.

"This might be one way to keep from blowing it on new programs," Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise, head of the House Appropriations Committee, appeared before the tax-writing panel to announce she favored the contingency-fund bill, which was offered by Rep. James Lucas, R-Moscow.

Mrs. Gurnsey said Nevada has $20 million in a special reserve account which is tapping this year to offset a general revenue shortfall.

"It's a good business to have a savings account," she said.

Lucas said the availability of surplus funds would allow lawmakers to prevent property-tax increases — which are triggered automatically when the state reduces its appropriation to the public schools in the middle of a fiscal year.

It also would allow legislators to avoid raising general taxes to balance the budget, he said.

Horse now state fossil

BOISE (UPI) — The prehistoric Hagerman horse won Senate approval Thursday for designation as the state fossil...even though one senator insisted he was more deserving of the label.

The bill promoting the 3-million-year-old species passed on a vote of 32-2 amid several jokes about the nature of the measure.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said the fossils in the Hagerman Valley are a "treasure" that are recognized throughout the world as an archaeological rarity.

"He said naming the 'equus idahoensis' as the state's fossil would be an 'educational' move — 'to call this unique resource to attention.'"

The fossils were discovered in 1928 in part of a 500-acre fossil bed in the Magic Valley.

School merger proposal is resurrected

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — A proposal to merge Lewis-Clark State College with the University of Idaho has been resurrected this year by some Joint Finance Appropriations Committee members as a means of saving money, Co-Chairman David Little said Thursday.

The Legislature two years ago considered a similar move, which may be taken more seriously this year because of the fiscal problems lawmakers have been grappling with, said Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow and JFAC member.

But she discounted the proposal, saying lawmakers were trying to force the state Board of Education to take an unpopular action that already has failed in the Legislature.

Comments about the plan came after the committee made another unsuccessful attempt Thursday to recommend funding for higher education — a decision that has plagued the committee this week.

Little, R-Emmett, said the plan to turn the Lewiston school into a "satellite" of the University of Idaho would not save a lot of money, but he did not have exact figures.

Legislative budget analyst John Pranden also could not give an estimated savings, but he said lawmakers two years ago predicted they could save between $500,000 and $700,000 by merging the schools.

Lewis-Clark has requested a total 1984 budget of $4.7 million, with $3.9 million of that from the state's general account. University of Idaho's overall request is $38.2 million.

Little said he would support consolidation because "I just feel strongly Idaho has more universities and colleges than it needs."

Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, said the proposal was one of many being considered to save money.

Tough day at prison

BOISE (UPI) — Guards were cleaning up two cellblocks at the state prison Thursday in the wake of at least two inmate deaths and a fire which was allegedly started by a death-row inmate.

Warden Darrel Gardner said Leonard Lloyd Reinke, 22, attempted to kill himself about 9 p.m. Wednesday by slashing his forearm with a razor.

Two hours later, guards found Thomas Warren Wayne Brown, 19, lying in a pool of blood in his cell. Gardner said Brown cut deeply into his left forearm near the elbow — probably with a razor blade.

The warden said the two incidents occurred in different prison units and were apparently unrelated.

Earlier Wednesday, death-row inmate Randall Lynn McKinney allegedly set fire to a mattress in his cell, Gardner said.

He said no one was injured in the blaze, which started about 4 p.m. He said guards were forced to evacuate six death-row inmates for more than an hour while prison employees extinguished the fire and cleared dense smoke from the cellblock.

McKinney, 21, was sentenced to death in 1961 in connection with the shooting death of a Blackfoot man who was driving him and another defendant to a location near Arco. Bonneville County authorities said.

Love note to Caldwell

BOISE (UPI) — So many congratulatory resolutions are flying out of the Idaho Legislature this year that lawmakers should consider creating an Amenities Committee to process them, says a House member disgruntled by the practice.

A Senate concurrent resolution honoring the city of Caldwell for its 100th anniversary barely squeezed out of the House State Affairs Committee on a voice after it was blasted by Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise.

She said the Caldwell resolution and a stack of similar measures moving through the legislative chambers this session are an unnecessary waste of time and money.

"Maybe we should have an Amenities Committee," Ms. Bunting told fellow State Affairs Committee members. "Next thing you know we'll be honoring the rodeo queen."

"The deterioration of the quality of legislation — going out of this Legislature this year does not make me proud," she said.

"Especially since there's not one of these for Rexburg — it's our 100th birthday too," Rep. Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, said in a more humorous vein.

"And it's was Pocatello's 100th anniversary last year," chipped in Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello.

Rep. Michael Strasser, R-Nampa, sponsor of the resolution, described it as a "love note" to Caldwell.

Bill to up drinking age fails

BOISE (UPI) — Ending a three-ballot deadlock in the wake of an emotion-spiced hearing, the Senate State Affairs Committee has voted to table a bill that would raise Idaho's minimum legal drinking from 19 to 21.

Sen. Ron Belletsch, D-Grangeville, made the motion to have the measure tabled — an action that effectively killed the bill.

He made the move Wednesday after siding with supporters of the bill on the first three votes, each of which ended in a 5-5 tie.

"I'm making this motion to get this issue behind us," Belletsch said. "I've bled more blood than anyone else on this issue."

Belletsch's teen-age daughter was killed in a highway accident unrelated to alcohol last year, and he has said the death caused him to agonize over his position on the bill.

After the vote, tavern owners and employees broke out in applause while supporters of the bill grimaced and drooped their heads.

Long delay could jeopardize buy-out

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A federal official says delaying tactics in the Missouri Legislature could jeopardize the buy-out of Times Beach residents and force the cancellation of flood insurance in Jefferson County.

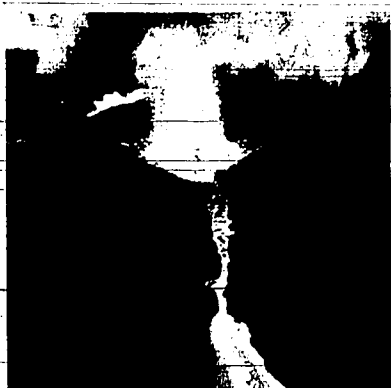

Pat Breheny of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said federal officials most likely will be able to meet their deadline of March 17 for coming up with a plan to buy out the homes and businesses in the dioxin-contaminated town.

The Environmental Protection Agency is allocating $33 million from the Superfund for the buy-out, and the state of Missouri must come up with about $3.3 million in matching funds. But Sen. Edwin I. Dirck, D-St. Ann., said he opposes the state putting up its share. Dirck said the Times Beach residents caused their own problems and the rest of their state "doesn't owe those people anything."

Breheny blasted the state's delay at a news conference Wednesday. He said the state funding was "the biggest obstacle remaining" in the buy-out.

"The money should have been here like yesterday," said Breheny. "The doctors have made it clear. They want those people out of there. The state of Missouri has to do its part."

Lava from Kilauea shoots 100 feet into the air

Houses destroyed by high lava wall

KAILAPANA, Hawaii (UPI) — A 25-foot high wall of lava bulldozed two houses in a fiery display Thursday as the flow from a furiously erupting Kilauea Volcano began winding its way toward the coastline.

No other homes were threatened in the 50-home Royal Gardens housing development, but because of the lava's erratic movement, island of Hawaii Civil Defense officials said there was a possibility "fingers" from the main flow could veer off and hit other structures.

When the main flow exited from the heavily wooded subdivision, which is about one mile wide and stretches 2.5 miles upslope, it was about 2.5 miles from the eastern coastline.

In its path, chia (Hawaiian apple) trees and under-dry scrub brush were knocked over and set ablaze.

Firefighters, still weary from fighting three major brush fires the past two weeks on the drought-stricken island, said there were no serious outbreaks in the volcano area.

All the Hawaiian islands were enshrouded in a heavy haze from the eruption's smoke and fumes. U.S. Geological Survey scientists at the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory said activity at the eruption site, which is midway down Kilauea's east rift, had intensified since it began spouting Jan. 3.

Paul Greenland of the observatory said lava spewed 120 feet into the air.

Stage set for natural gas battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of 26 House members set the stage Thursday for a "classic battle" with President Reagan over natural gas, introducing legislation to roll back prices and tighten controls on the industry.

The lawmakers, predominantly Democrats, touted their comprehensive natural gas regulatory package as a major alternative to President Reagan's recently announced plan for decontrolling gas prices.

Supported by the AFL-CIO and 55 other labor and consumer groups, the House measure runs counter to Reagan's proposal for removing most regulation of the gas industry.

"This legislation will set the stage for a classic battle in Congress over natural gas pricing policies between those who want to control the rapidly rising rates ... and the Reagan administration, which has submitted legislation to lift natural gas price controls entirely," said Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, a sponsor.

A major gas producers' group, the Natural Gas Supply Association, quickly denounced the legislation. "The proposal would further compound the regulatory morass that already is forcing higher heating bills on consumers and ultimately could lead to natural gas shortages," said association spokesman Mike Waters.

A leader of the House group, Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., argued that the unusually mild weather this winter "kept us from being confronted with the widespread crisis that gas price hikes would normally have meant."

"We do need to move now, and not in the direction the administration has proposed, to make sure that consumers can make it through next winter," Glickman said.

Power outage lets workers get a day off

BOSTON (UPI) — Thousands of workers enjoyed an unexpected holiday Thursday as utility crews worked around the clock to repair damage from a fiery manhole explosion that blacked out the large, bustling financial district.

More than 6,000 businesses and residences in a section of the city 1 1/4 miles long and a 1/4-mile wide lost power at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday when an underground fire burned through at least seven major power cables.

The area included three major hotels; more than a dozen glass and stone skyscrapers; and the popular Quincy Market, a mecca for tourists, souvenir hunters and well-heeled shoppers.

Police banned traffic from the area to facilitate repairs to 1,400 feet of cable burned in blast the sent a 200-pound manhole cover soaring into the air. There were no injuries.

Boston Edison Co. crews worked through an all-night downpour, digging shallow trenches for 24 major lines that had been routed through the manhole. The fire ate through seven lines and the remaining 14 lines were shut off to prevent further damage.

Edison spokesman William Connolly said.

He said power to the 4,000 large businesses and 2,500 smaller firms and residential customers would be restored by early evening but added it could be up to a week before permanent repairs were made.

Public safety officials treated the disruption like a snowstorm, closing off access and threatening to ticket and tow the cars of motorists who ignored requests to use public transportation.

Workers who did not receive word of the extra day off jammed the few open coffee shops in the area and then drifted off to the shopping district.

Tom Golf, manager of a computer store, described the scene as "pleasant confusion" as security guards informed people buildings would remain closed.

Cheers, curses greet Queen Elizabeth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II toured an American shopping place Thursday, followed by the cheers of some of British royalty's most enthusiastic American fans and the curses of its bitterest enemies.

A local Irish nationalist leader interrupted a gala welcoming concert screaming "stop that torture" as the queen gazed slightly ahead, until the man was dragged out of the audience by police.

Irish nationalists opposed to British policy in Northern Ireland formed an alliance with anti-Reagan groups to plan what they said would be a demonstration by thousands of protesters just 300 yards from the M.H. DeYoung Museum when the president hosted a state dinner for the queen Thursday night.

About 1,000 anti-British protesters matched shouts with an equal number of cheering fans waving Union Jacks when the queen and Prince Philip arrived at Davies Symphony Hall for a reception and concert hosted by Mayor Dianne Feinstein.

Just before Mary Martin was to sing, a man stood up in the orchestra section screaming "stop that torture," a reference to charges that British forces torture captured Irish Republican Army members.

The queen looked at him and then looked ahead without expression, ignoring the disturbance. The audience began clapping to drown him out. Prince Philip, joining in enthusiastically, until police dragged the protester away. He did not resist.

Police identified him as Seamus Gibney, a leader of Irish Northern Aid, and said he was released without charge. Gibney told UPI he had obtained an invitation to get in to the concert and "I'm going to the dinner" Thursday night.

Cosmopolitan San Francisco, with a 1 Irish-American population since Gold Rush days, also has a large Commonwealth community of English, Scots and Australians.

A band of green-jacketed Irish nationalists, carrying green banners with slogans such as "IRA forever" and led by a bagpiper, marched on the hall. Police on horseback guarded the building.

A penny saved can be used to get even

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The American Towing Co. told Martin Thesing he would need "exact change," if he wanted his wife's car back — so he brought in 8,667 pennies.

Thesing, apparently annoyed at what he considered an exorbitant towing fee, wanted to swap the pennies for keys to his wife's car, which had been towed from a lot where parking is prohibited.

Richard Berger, part owner of the company, refused to take the pennies. But a police officer told him he had to accept the payment and give Thesing a receipt.

After the car was towed Tuesday, Thesing was told by the company it would cost $80 to get the car back that night, or $86.67 the next day. Berger would not accept a check, Thesing said, and said there would be an additional 10 percent charge if he paid with a credit card.

Thesing said Berger told him he would have to produce "the exact change" if he wanted his wife's car back.

Calcium may help fight hypertension

CHICAGO (UPI) — A daily calcium supplement may prevent healthy men and women from developing hypertension, doctors said Thursday.

Dr. Jose Villalba and colleagues at the University of California at Los Angeles and in Panama in Guatemala City studied 28 men and 29 women — ages 18 to 35.

The calcium-supplemented group received daily for 22 weeks an oral tablet representing 1 gram of calcium. The placebo group received a daily tablet of the same weight and size.

"Supplementation with 1 gram of calcium produced a significant reduction in diastolic blood pressure in young healthy persons of both sexes," they said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Furthermore, calcium intake seems to be inversely correlated with the incidence of eclampsia in pregnancy," a disorder characterized by high blood pressure and convulsions.

The effects were stabilized in the ninth week of supplementation for women and in the sixth week for men, the doctors said. The reduction in diastolic blood pressure was 5.6 percent in women and 9 percent in men.

Rescue bill passage expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Thursday predicted easy passage of a retirement system rescue bill next week, and President Reagan praised a committee's vote "to protect Social Security for years to come."

"I'm sure we'll have a bill passed and it will go to the Senate," O'Neill told reporters. A vote is expected Wednesday, O'Neill said he hopes the House will approve a payroll tax hike next century instead of raising the retirement age or curbing benefits.

Addressing a U.S. Olympics Committee lunch in Los Angeles, Reagan hailed the Ways and Means Committee's overwhelming approval Wednesday of a Social Security financing bill.

"I hope the full House and Senate will follow their lead and protect Social Security for years to come," he said, Reagan said enactment would help economic recovery.

In a letter to all House members Thursday, Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and senior Republican Barber Conable of New York — an unusual alliance — commended the "bipartisan spirit" that produced the bill and cautioned the measure was so carefully negotiated it should not be disturbed.

"The pieces were locked together with great care," they wrote. "Contributions were extracted from each sector of the system. Those contributions, while painful, are fair. And therein lies the strength of the plan."

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., said his committee will begin drafting a bill Tuesday or Wednesday, and probably will join the House in attaching an amendment to extend unemployment benefits.

Dole gave no specifics on the form his panel's amendment might take. The House Ways and Means Committee agreed to extend unemployment compensation through Sept. 30 and added up to 10 weeks of additional benefits for those whose benefits have expired.

Firewomen assigned to ladder duty

NEW YORK (UPI) — Female firefighters were assigned to strenuous ladder duty for the first time Thursday over the objections of at least one woman who claimed the move may be a ploy to force women out of the department.

U.S. District Judge Charles Sifton Wednesday ordered into effect a pilot program that reassigns 30 male and three female probationary firefighters from engine companies to a ladder company in the department's First Division.

Firefighter Brenda Berkman, who brought a court suit that led to the admission of women to the department last fall, had sought to block the program.

Most probationary members are assigned to engine companies, where they primarily bring water to fires, said department spokesman John Mulligan.

Ladder duty generally requires more physical strength and individual work in performing risky search, rescue and ventilation operations.

Miss Berkman is not opposed to ladder duty, her lawyer said.

"But if it's special and looking for the women to screw up in the ladder company then it's done for improper purposes," King said.

He said the program is targeted at women because it applies only to firefighters on duty for four to six months. That group includes the department's 36 women firefighters.

Anthony DiMartino, executive assistant to the chief of the department, said, "Our reason is that after six months in the department, all members are obligated to go to ladder companies. If we wait for the six months to arrive, they will not have the training."

Writer Koestler, wife found dead

LONDON (UPI) — Arthur Koestler, a celebrated political writer and a long-time advocate of mercy killing, was found dead Thursday with his wife in an apparent double suicide at their home. He was 77.

Colleagues said the Hungarian-born author of "Darkness at Noon," a devastating insight into Stalin's totalitarian Russia — had been suffering from Parkinson's disease.

Police said he died with his third wife, Cynthia, who was in her 50s. She also was a member of the voluntary euthanasia group called "Exit."

Scotland Yard said the bodies were found sitting in two chairs and they ruled out homicide pending the results of an autopsy Friday.

"There are no suspicious circumstances and no one else is involved," a police source said. Another source said it appeared the couple died of a barbiturate overdose in an apparent suicide pact.

The Koestlers' maid alerted police when she found a note beside an empty bottle of pills in their house in the fashionable Knightsbridge section of London.

Five suspects could go free

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A lawyer for former Salvadoran national guardsmen accused of killing four American churchwomen will move to have the five men freed for lack of evidence, a court source said Thursday.

Maryknoll nuns Ila Ford and Maura Clark, Ursuline nun Dorothy Karel and religious social worker Jean Donovan were killed Dec. 2, 1980 near the international airport about 18 miles south of San Salvador.

U.S. military aid to El Salvador is partially dependent on a successful prosecution of the case. Five former national guardsmen, including one who confessed to taking part in the killings, "are being held for sexually abusing and murdering the women," said Cesar Augusto Canas, attorney for Francisco Orlando Contreras, Jose Roberto Contrera and Daniel Canales Ramirez, three of the five accused.

The five ex-guardsmen were placed under military arrest in April, 1981 and went before a civil court in February 1982.

Canas told court employees that after studying testimony in the case for a month he believed there was not sufficient evidence to hold his clients, and he would move to have them freed.

Court employees who asked not to be identified said Canas returned 450 pages of judicial documents to the Third Chamber appeals court in San Vicente with two pages of handwritten notes urging that ballistic tests on the soldiers' weapons be repeated.

The tests registered in court records were carried out in FBI laboratories and at least one shell casing matched a German Maw G-3 automatic rifle carried by the guardsmen.

The families' lawyers have said that because autopsies show smaller caliber weapons may have been used, other people besides the five former guardsmen may have been involved.

"What is curious is that the defense is now asking for the same thing we had (sought) for months," said Jim Zorn, a New York City attorney working for the Lawyers Committee on Human Rights.

Army takes control

GAUHAATI, India (UPI) — Vowing to be ruthless, Assam's governor granted the army sweeping powers over half the state Thursday as Bengali immigrants staged retaliatory raids to avenge massacres by native Assamese.

In the latest violence, the Bengali immigrants who have been the target of a wave of slaughter staged raids on scattered villages in the devastated Nowong district, 96 miles east of New Delhi.

Officials in the state capital of Gauhati said the raiders set fire to homes and killed at least six native Assamese before federal troops moved in to restore order.

The raids were staged in the same district where 2,000 Bengalis were massacred Feb. 18-19.

The latest slayings linked to 3,701 the number of people killed since the ethnic strife began Feb. 1, according to compilation of official reports.

On Wednesday, there were 41 deaths, including 24 Bengali-speaking Hindu fishermen whose villages were set ablaze as they slept in a raid by 1,000 Assamese.

Assam's violence has been directed mostly against Bengalis — many of them immigrants from Bangladesh — whose expulsion from the overcrowded northeastern state is demanded by a student-led movement of Assamese.

In response to the orgy of violence, 20,000 federal troops Thursday were given a virtual right to rule over the lush but violence-racked Brahmaputra River Valley, which makes up half of Assam.

The troops' deployment in their new role began when the state's new Chief Minister, Hiteshwar Saikia, admitted all other measures had failed and invoked the Armed Forces Special Powers Act.

"We have to be ruthless," Saikia said. "We must tell them (anti-immigrant rioters) we mean business. Communal trouble must stop."

Under the act, the army has powers to arrest, search and conduct raids without warrant in "disturbed areas" for the purpose of maintaining law and order, but the deployment falls short of constituting martial law.

The act also empowers officers above the rank of sergeant to shoot on sight to preserve order, but that section of the law was under a court-ordered stay.

Legislators propose Swan Falls compromise

By BRUCE HAMMOND Times-News writer

BOISE — Two Magic Valley legislators don't like Idaho Power Co.'s solution to the water-right battle at Swan Falls Dam, but they did introduce a compromise package in the House on Thursday.

Originally, Rep. Vard Chabrun, R-Albion, and Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, introduced a bill that would have subordinated Idaho Power's water right at Swan Falls to all upstream development.

But utility officials have threatened to bring suit against the state on constitutional grounds if the Legislature passes the measure.

Instead, Logan Lanham, an Idaho Power vice president, said Wednesday that the power company could agree to allow existing irrigation from the Snake River to continue, provided the Legislature passes a law removing the Idaho Public Utilities Commission's jurisdiction over the utility's water right.

'People don't seem to realize that this Supreme Court ruling is not just an irrigation issue...'

— Laird Noh

"But that doesn't resolve the question of future development," Noh says. "People don't seem to realize that this Supreme Court ruling is not just an irrigation issue. It effectively halts new city water systems, mining operations in the eastern part of the state and even the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory."

To that end, Chabrun and Noh introduced a new package Thursday. In an attempt to meet both their goals and those of the utility, the utility, however, is not supporting it.

Idaho Power Chairman James Bruce continues to argue that new uses of water should have to pay their own way. Noh says that means either buying the water from Idaho Power at power-generation prices or condemning the Swan Falls property.

Idaho Power officials also got a bill they are sponsoring introduced Thursday by the House State Affairs Committee.

It would remove the PUC from supervising the utility's water right. The utility's measure, however, does not say anything about protecting existing water uses.

That is necessary, according to Ken Dunn, the director of the Department of Water Resources, or he will have to shut down enough existing water uses — both diversions and wells — to make up the 8,400-cubic-foot-per-second flow granted to Idaho Power at Swan Falls. Recent diversions along the Snake River have reduced the water flow at Swan Falls to between 4,500 and 7,500 cubic feet per second during most years.

Consequently, Noh and Chabrun had a new measure drafted Wednesday night for introduction at the State Affairs Committee meeting.

Their measure includes: the PUC provision requested by Idaho Power; the retention of all existing water uses; and provides for further subordination of the Swan Falls right to upstream development.

Bruce says Idaho Power should be able to keep all of the water arriving at Swan Falls after passing existing upstream development.

"The key to our bill," Noh says, "is that it has a non-reversibility clause. That means if Idaho Power wins a case against one part of it, such as the water-right dispute, all of the measure becomes ineffective.

"That way, if they legally strike down the other portions, then they get the PUC control back over them," Noh says.

But if the measure fails to pass the Legislature, Noh and Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, have other pieces of legislation waiting.

"There are alternative ways to resolve this so that we don't shut down all development over two-thirds of the state," Noh says. They include:

- Have federal licensing of Swan Falls turned over to the state by essentially buying the facility, based on the depreciated book value — estimated to be as low as $94,000.
- Outright condemnation and state operation of the power house, as proposed by Peavey.

Meanwhile, PUC President Perry Swisher says he would not oppose legislation defining the commission's jurisdiction over water rights in power-generation cases.

Rupert woman granted 'fantasy'

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

RUPERT — When a man claiming to be perpetual game-show host Peter Marshall telephoned Dixie Mickelsen on Tuesday and told her she had won a trip to Rome, the housewife thought someone was playing a joke on her.

It was no joke.

Mickelsen, who lives eight miles south of Rupert with her husband and six children, is currently in Burbank, Calif., taping an episode of the daytime show "Fantasy." The program's format is to make reality out of the fantasies of those who write into the show.

Marshall is the co-host of the program. Mickelsen said Wednesday evening, while preparing for her expense-paid trip to the West Coast.

Mickelsen says she watches "Fantasy" occasionally. And when the drawing for "fantasy vacations" was announced, she sent in a postcard.

"I don't know why I entered. It just sounded like fun."

Not one to enter a lot of contests, she says the most she had won before was a quilt from a local organization.

In this case, her occasional endeavor paid off.

After Marshall's call from Nebraska, where the drawing was held, Mickelsen says she waited all afternoon for proof that the whole thing was not a joke.

"I kept thinking this isn't happening to me."

Then, another man from the program telephoned and told the Idaho woman that she would be flown out to the studio in California to tape the show today.

Mickelsen was overjoyed.

"My husband, David, laughed because he said he didn't think I would ever be speechless."

Mickelsen says her neighbors and friends thought she was playing a joke on them when she told them her news.

She does not know when the program with her appearance will be shown in this area. Mickelsen said Wednesday. Her trip was one of three awarded on the game show.

On the negative side, Mickelsen says she probably will have to pay taxes on the trip, which is valued at $10,000.

Yet, the excursion to Rome will be a dream of sorts for Mickelsen, who has never been to Europe or "anywhere." She and her husband plan to go this fall.

When asked if she would enter more contests, Mickelsen said, "I just might."

Tiring work

Ron Scherrup of Wolverton International in Twin Falls was finishing one of his tractor tires Thursday in preparation for the opening of the "Agri-Action" show today in the College of Southern Idaho Expo

YFCA leader suggests pool study be done

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls should consider establishing a citizens committee to study the feasibility of a new city pool, the director of the YFCA says.

Add City Council should consider establishing such a committee by the end of the month, or face forcing Twin Falls residents to go two summers without an all-purpose public swimming pool, he says.

John Eschenburg, the director of the YFCA in Twin Falls, says the city must accept losing the Harmon Park pool for the coming summer as a tragedy. But he says it would be "an even greater tragedy" if there were no new city pool by the summer of 1984.

Eschenburg estimates that construction contracts would have to be ready for bidding next February. In order to build a new pool by the summer of 1984.

Counting backward that would mean a public fund-raising drive would have to culminate this fall, he says. Any committee formed to lead such a drive might have to complete an economic feasibility report by late spring and decide what kind of pool to build, and where to build it, by late summer, he says.

Chris Talkington, the Twin Falls mayor, said Thursday that he is planning to raise the matter of a pool fund-drive at the next City Council work session, which will be held Monday. But he said he does not know if council will make a policy decision on the matter at that time.

But Tom Courtney, the Twin Falls city manager, believes there is a cushion of time to study the possibility of a new pool and still complete one by the summer of 1984.

Eschenburg says that establishing a citizens committee to study alternatives might be a good way to start a pool drive. Such a committee should have a "broad-based" membership, in addition to representing groups with obvious interests in a new pool, he says.

Talkington agrees.

"I am concerned that this must be a citizens effort, not just the city of Twin Falls," he says.

To be successful, a fund drive must be community-wide, like the United Way, he says. He believes a new pool "won't fly" without such support.

At this point, the question before council is "whether to let it (the support) coalesce of its own initiative, or whether to provide some momentum," he says.

Eschenburg notes, in making his recommendations, that he speaks from the experience of building three swimming pools and operating four for the YMCA.

"He (Eschenburg) has probably got more experience than anybody else in town," Courtney says.

The experience of the national YMCA organization could also be valuable to the city, Eschenburg says. "And we want to help the city in whatever way we can."

Such cooperation might be no more extensive than allowing the city access to records of YMCA research. The national organization has been involved in building "in excess of 2,000 swimming pools," Eschenburg says.

Any assistance the YMCA might offer could help the city get the best pool for its money, and it might not cost the city, unless a national YMCA representative came to Twin Falls, he says.

Or cooperation might go as far as making an arrangement to allow the city to build a new pool on YFCA land near Harmon Park, should the Harmon Park site not work out, he says.

This option would need special approval, "but the YFCA board would

Children get unmedical view of pediatrics unit

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dozens of children, wrapped in surgical masks and pulling on helium-filled balloons, took over the fourth floor of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center on Thursday.

The hospital was not sponsoring a circus; it was showing off its new pediatrics unit.

The 21-bed wing, which will open in about two weeks, will feature a playroom, dining area, isolation room and a three-bed intensive-care unit. The department also will be equipped with a sleeping room for the parents of critically ill patients.

The department will be staffed by about seven doctors and 20 nursing personnel.

The whole department is decorated in a bright orange, yellow and green motif, and a jungle mural decorates the playroom. The ward clerk also can make calls from a large Mickey Mouse telephone.

The wing was designed with children in mind, and it should make a stay more pleasant, says Ann Kaster, a pediatrics nurse.

Thursday, the hospital ignored its regular ment that visitors be at least 14, in order to give children a chance to visit the hospital under non-threatening conditions.

Russ Teater enjoyed hiding under the heavy metal beds and tumbling in the playroom, while his mother, Jo Teater, a member of the hospital's public-relations staff, conducted a tour.

Cub Scouts from Pack 81 got a chance to find out how an oxygen tent worked. They also tried to figure out how to retrieve the half-donut runaway balloons stuck to the ceiling of the lobby.

Valerie Bick of Castleford brought her son to the hospital to help him overcome his fear of an upcoming tonsillectomy. Stephanie Elliott brought a son and two cousins along to let them see what was going on at the hospital.

Ellen Brunson-Newton brought two children along because it was an educational thing to do, she said. And Corrie Buhler also brought two children along because "kids need to be informed."

"Our organizers were pleased with the turnout. They had about 500 visitors — judging from the number of cookies they gave away."

Contractor wants ambulance service in Buhl

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

BUHL — A Buhl contractor says he intends to provide the west end of Twin Falls County with an ambulance service.

Tom Edmons of Buhl says he is trying to attract a private ambulance firm to the west-end area. Short of that, Edmons says, he's ready to go into the ambulance business himself.

"I think within 30 days, Buhl will be served by an ambulance, one way or the other," Edmons says.

Last month, Dennis Brodigan, the owner of Twin Falls Emergency Medical Services, announced that he would no longer station an ambulance in Buhl. Brodigan said the service was too costly because Buhl did not provide enough ambulance calls to justify it.

Ambulances will be dispatched from TFEMS headquarters in Twin Falls. A city-run quick-response unit will be responsible for administering initial treatment to patients until the ambulance arrives in Buhl.

While the quick-response unit plan has the support of Buhl officials, Edmons says the lack of a Buhl-based ambulance poses problems for the community.

Edmons says he will proceed without a government subsidy, if necessary.

"I think somebody could come down here and make a margin," he says. "I don't think they'd get rich, but I don't think that the ambulance would go into the hole."

But Brodigan says he lost $16,459 from Aug. 1, 1982, through Feb. 15, when he had one ambulance and two full-time employees stationed in Buhl. During that period, Brodigan said the service handled 85 calls from the west-end area.

"Buhl actually has been fortunate to have what they've had over the years," Brodigan says. Many Idaho towns of the same size traditionally have relied on volunteer-staffed quick-response units and ambulance companies from nearby cities, he says.

"They don't need an ambulance service. They need a good quick-response unit, which they have under (Buhl Fire Department Chief) Mark Grimes," Brodigan says.

Those volunteers, who are certified as emergency medical technicians, arrive at the scene of a call within minutes and work to stabilize a patient before the ambulance arrives. Ambulance units from Twin Falls should arrive at the scene within 10 minutes, he says.

"Buhl's quick-response unit will take approximately three minutes to arrive on the scene," Brodigan says. "That means it will take another 13 minutes for an ambulance to arrive. That type of response system is what's happening all over the state."

Relying on a quick-response unit was the only option available, other than doubling or possibly tripling ambulance rates or seeking a government subsidy. Neither option appeared likely to succeed, Brodigan says.

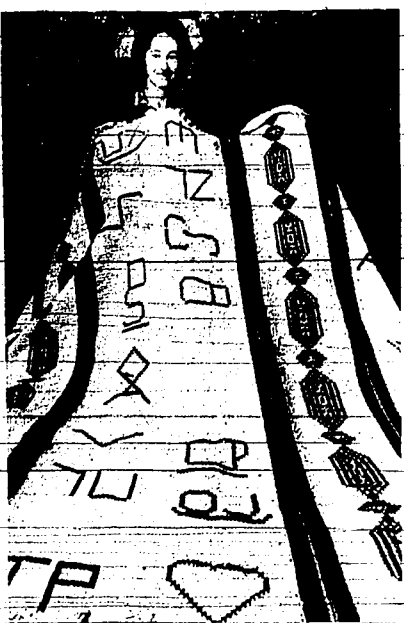

Quick-response-unit member Kathy Grimes, who managed the short-lived Buhl-based ambulance operation, is confident that the volunteer unit will meet the needs of the community.

Police chase woman through Burley

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BURLEY — An Oakley woman was arrested Wednesday night after she was chased by four police cars through Burley and allegedly rammed one of them with her truck.

Mary E. Turner, 32, has been charged with one felony and two misdemeanors as a result of the incident, according to Fifth District Magistrate Court officials.

The incident began about 10:30 p.m. and lasted about 15 minutes. The Cassia County sheriff's office gave this account:

Deputy Lewis Jones noticed a pickup with only one headlight heading east on U.S. 30, a little outside of Burley. Driving in the opposite direction, Jones turned around to warn the driver about the light and noted that the vehicle was "all over the road." He then turned on his flashing lights to stop the truck, which began to accelerate just inside the city limits.

With Jones in pursuit, the truck ran into the yard of an unidentified residence, off Burton Street, and came to a halt. When Jones stepped out of his vehicle to approach Turner, the woman put the truck in reverse, heading in the deputy's direction.

Jones jumped out the way and was not hurt.

With the assistance of three Burley police cars, Turner later was "cornered" in the Burley High School parking lot, a few blocks away.

After she unsuccessfully tried to go through a chain-link fence, she backed up and rammed a police car. It is not known if any officers were in the vehicle at the time, but no injuries were reported.

After hitting the police car, Turner's truck stopped.

She then was taken into custody and sent to Cassia Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for facial lacerations.

Turner pleaded guilty Thursday to misdemeanor charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, according to magistrate court officials. She has pleaded not guilty to the felony charge — attempted assault with a deadly weapon.

There was $1,800 damage to the police car. No information was available on the damage to Turner's truck or to the school fence. There was minor damage to the Burton Street residence, a deputy said.

Store lawsuit ends in mistrial

TWIN FALLS — An Eden couple's lawsuit against a major grocery-store chain ended in mistrial Wednesday, when a jury could not agree on a verdict.

Don and Alta McDonald were seeking $350,000 in their lawsuit against Safeway Stores Inc.

The couple contended that Safeway was responsible for Mrs. McDonald's fall inside the Twin Falls Safeway, at 1147 Filer Ave. E., on April 17, 1981. According to the suit, the woman slipped on a patch of melted ice cream and injured her hip, on which she had had previous surgery.

The four-day Fifth District Court trial concluded early Wednesday, when Judge Daniel Meehl determined that the 12-member jury would not be able to reach a verdict. Meehl declared a mistrial.

No date for a new trial has been set.

The plaintiffs allege that the store was negligent in the matter, and that the store was under a duty to be more careful. They sought $300,000 for Mrs. McDonald's past and future medical bills, and as compensation for her pain and suffering. The lawsuit sought $50,000 on behalf of her husband, as compensation for the loss of his wife's companionship.

But Safeway officials argued that they had exercised reasonable care, and that Mrs. McDonald had proceeded in a negligent manner, which led to the accident.

Five of the 12 jurors sided with the McDonalds. Seven sided with the defendants.

Jury members had retired to deliberate at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. At 11:30 p.m., they requested additional instructions from the judge.

Meehl declared a mistrial at 1:40 a.m.

One dead, one injured in car crash

RUPERT — A one-car accident near Rupert claimed one life and left a second man in critical condition Thursday.

Minidoka County sheriff's deputies declined to identify the victims Thursday evening, pending notification of relatives. The fatality victim was described as being approximately 48, while the victim in critical condition, at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, was reported as being 54. Both men were said to be Rupert residents.

Deputies said the accident occurred at about 2:55 p.m., about four-and-a-half miles west of Rupert, along 50 South, a county road.

Deputies said the victims' westbound car failed to negotiate a corner and plunged into a canal, landing upside down.

Alley Cafe operator calls it quits

TWIN FALLS — Roughly one year after he began operating The Alley Cafe, Ray Wedmore has called it quits.

Wedmore, who leased the cafe operation, located at 121 Fourth Ave. S. in Twin Falls, declined to say why he ceased operations, as of Wednesday.

"There is litigation involved. I don't want any pretrial publicity on it," he said.

Wedmore said he plans to remain in Twin Falls and become involved in another type of business.

The closure does not affect The Alley bar and motel — part of the same building complex — which are operated by Alley owner Ralph Faught.

Faught said Thursday the cafe will be reopened. He indicated the cause of the closure was financial.

"The economy has got quite a bit to do with it, and the stress or competition has something to do with it," he said. "You can make money, but you've got to work hard and you've got to know what you're doing. It's just like any other business, only harder."

Faught, who opened The Alley 18 years ago, said he has received calls from persons interested in leasing the cafe operation.

certainly be willing to talk about it with the city," he says.

Feschburg says it would be "ridiculous" if a city of the size of Twin Falls failed to offer its citizens a public swimming pool.

And he questions the $400,000 figure that city officials say represents the minimum needed to build a new outdoor pool.

He has done some preliminary research, he says, and received a $200,000 bid for an eight-lane outdoor pool, with a diving "L" at one end and a wading pool at the other.

"Personally, I don't think that is a great deal of money in this city," he says.

Such a pool would not be as large as the existing Harmon Park pool, but the city may not want to build another large, single-season pool, he says.

At a later date, it may want to consider building a year-round indoor facility in cooperation with the College of Southern Idaho and the Twin Falls school district.

"Who knows, the money may not be there," he says. "But you don't find that out until you try."

Ambulance

ambulance would do when they got on the scene except advanced life support, which we're working on, because we do have advanced life support personnel over here," he says.

"It's nice having an ambulance, and Buhl's really gotten use to it. But I really don't think it's necessary. I think a quick-response unit will be able to handle anything that Buhl's going to have."

Buhl officials say they're satisfied with the concept.

He supposes any community, if they had a choice, would choose an ambulance. But that choice was not there to be made, so we felt, with a quick-response unit like we have, we have the next-best coverage," says county Commissioner Judy Felton, who represents the west end on the county executive board.

Buhl Mayor Jim Barker says that community officials planned for the possibility of an ambulance pullout by training a quick-response unit — volunteers.

"It was not unexpected. We had planned to implement a quick-response unit. As long as the ambulance could provide that service, that was fine," he says. "If they could, we would have an alternative, and we do have an alternative."

Buhl officials first began a serious review of ambulance service in the community in 1981, shortly before

Brodigan initiated his company as a competitor to Magic Valley Ambulance Service, which provided a Buhl-based ambulance unit for 16 years.

Following nearly a year of competition, Brodigan purchased that firm from owner Cloyde Edwards, the Twin Falls County coroner, last summer. Edwards' son, Calvin Edwards, who managed the firm, says he does not plan to re-enter ambulance business. By the terms of the purchase agreement, Edwards says he is prohibited from setting up a competing company.

But that hasn't stopped Edwards from criticizing Brodigan's withdrawal from the Buhl area.

Bruins nip Boise by 1, face Bonneville today

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Twin Falls Bruins, surviving three missed free throws and three turnovers in the closing 1:35, held off the Boise Braves 59-58 Thursday afternoon in the opening round of the State A-1 Boys Basketball Tournament at the Boise State University Pavilion.

Twin Falls will face Bonneville at 6:25 p.m. today for a berth in the finals. The Bruins defeated Bonneville twice during the regular season.

The Bruins, hard-pressed by the 12-13 Braves, won it when Andy Toolson hit a jumper from the top of the key with 2:57 left. After that, there was no more scoring, but a lot of nail-biting for both sides.

In the end, Mike Sanor's 94-foot throw, from the rebounding spot at one end to the opposite end, almost pulled it out for the Braves. Sanor's heave hit the backboard and caught the front lip of the rim on the carom before bouncing away.

It marked a bizarre end to what was a nip-and-tuck game throughout. Twin Falls' biggest advantage came at six points, twice in the early fourth quarter, while Boise managed a three-point lead midway through the third period.

Both coaches were at a loss to explain the absence of scoring over the final three minutes.

Twin Falls' woes began immediately after establishing the final margin. Mike Rice missed a free throw, but Bowen Call made a steal. Rice then turned it over on the spread offense twice, but added Toolson in a steal after the first one and Boise's Al Davis launched an air ball following the second.

With 20 seconds left, Oscar Salinas missed a free throw and Boise worked the clock down to a shot by Sanor off the baseline with two seconds remaining. Call was fouled on the rebound with a second to go, but missed the charity, leading to Sanor's 94-foot effort.

Ironically, Twin Falls had been nine-for-nine at the line until the closing minutes.

Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia said most of the Bruins' problems came from being outscored by the shorter Braves, plus Boise's ability to get the ball inside to the 6'7 Sanor. "They had six offensive rebounds in the first half to our two, and converted five of those into points," Astorquia said.

Astorquia took measures to change that in the second half, bringing Toolson off the point of the zone to help with the rebounding.

"Andy got us three consecutive rebounds that really helped, although this made them take the perimeter shot," Astorquia said. "They hit it very well; better than we thought they could."

Twin Falls used all its defensive alignments and still couldn't stop Boise's inside penetration. The Bruins went with a man-to-man for a while, but, Astorquia said, "They were clearing out the back side and looking for the job. That made us stay in some kind of zone most of the game. The only real defensive move that helped was putting Rice on (Mike) Clements. He hurt us badly off the baseline in the first half, but didn't shoot much in the second half."

Although the game ended at a slow pace, it opened with both teams running as they battled to a 19-19 first-quarter tie.

"We wanted a quicker pace than Boise did, but I didn't feel comfortable at that tempo," Astorquia said. "But I didn't want it to slow down as much as it did."

On the other side of the court, Boise Coach Greg Hordemann said, "I'm happy with our kids. I thought they played well. I thought it was an exciting game, but the kind of game you hate to lose."

Hordemann said little Twin Falls did surprised him, although "I feel they shot better than our scouting report indicated."

He said the final play that led to Call's being fouled was "exactly the way we set it up, except the shot didn't go in." Boise's other major problem, Hordemann added, was "their size hurt us when they got into their offense."

The game opened with four ties, and then after two Call field goals gave Twin Falls a 12-8 lead, Boise rallied. The lead saw-sawed six times.

The see-sawing continued through the first four and a half minutes of the second quarter before points from Rod Buse and Jim Alsager gave Boise a 27-24 advantage. Mark Mumm tied it with a three-point play, and after a basket-exchange, four Greg-Snow points carried the Bruins into a 33-28 lead.

But two turnovers let Boise cut that to 33-32 at intermission.

Call and Snow shot Twin Falls into a 39-35 lead as the second half began. But the Bruins then went four and a half minutes without a point, and Boise regained the lead at 40-39.

In the closing 30 seconds of the period, Rice hit four points and Bobby Jones added two free throws for a 47-43 lead, which grew to 49-43 when

Tigers start quick, dump Wallace

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Jerome Tigers scored the first 13 points and then stalemated their way to a 58-48 victory over the Wallace Miners in the first round of the State A-2 Boys Basketball Tournament at the Boise State University Pavilion.

The victory will pit Jerome against Rigby in a semifinal at 8:05 p.m. today. The teams have met twice this season, with Rigby winning both: the first one in overtime. In other action Thursday, Moscow defeated Soda Springs 69-48 and will take on undefeated St. Maries at 4:45 p.m. in the upper bracket semifinal.

St. Maries, getting a tournament scoring record from senior Dan Roe, trumped Bishop Kelly 67-49. Rigby had the biggest blowout in the lopsided string of first-round games, ripping Emmett 73-41.

In consolation play, Soda Springs will meet Bishop Kelly at 9 a.m. with Emmett taking on Wallace at 12:20 p.m.

Jerome 58, Wallace 48

Jerome wasted little time in establishing its dominance against Wallace. Bob Stone sandwiched two quick buckets around a three-point play by Trey Prater and Greg Bartholomew tucked on a fast-break cripple Gary Hulsey then worked the inside for four more points before 6-6 center Brian Speery finally broke the shutout with a Wallace field goal with 2:59 to play.

Jerome continued at its hot offensive pace and racked up a 23-6 first-quarter lead. But Wallace outscored the Tigers in each quarter thereafter as Jerome lost interest.

Jerome twice mounted 10-point leads in the third quarter, the last time at 49-30. But by the end of the period Wallace had chipped back to within 14. The Miners lowered that to 10 on three occasions in the final period but never came closer, although Jerome scored just five points.

"It left Jerome Coach Pat Hoke in the awkward position of being disappointed after a state tournament victory. "I guess we just played up to the competition. That's what we always do, and that's what we did tonight after the first quarter," he said.

Hoke said the usual suspense of being on the bench was not there because of the big lead, but expressed other feelings.

"I was disgusted with the way we were playing, because we were not doing the things we want done. This far into the season we should be doing things consistently both offensively and defensively. But we just lost all intensity tonight," Hoke said. "Looking at tonight's third battle with Rigby, Hoke maintained his pre-tournament feeling that it is still a 50-50 thing."

"We're hoping the third time is a charm," he said with a slight chuckle. "I know one thing for sure — we'll have to play much better than we did in the second, third and fourth quarters against Wallace."

TWIN FALLS — Last year's A-3 runner-up, Genesee, and defending champion Greenleaf Friends Academy both took the first step towards a possible A-4 state crown in the opening round of the State A-4 Boys Basketball Tournament Thursday night.

Genesee's Bulldogs escaped a furious rally by Cascade for a 58-57 victory to advance to today's semifinal round. Cascade nearly came back from a 14-point deficit during the final two minutes to win.

Friends Academy pulled away from Castleford for a 56-51 win in the other night game.

Other first-day winners included Salmon River over Rockland 47-33 and Carey over Mullan 70-58. The tournament resumes at 7:30 p.m. today at 1 p.m.

Carey 70, Mullan 58

Carey fans slapped his back as sweat dripped off the brow of a happy but tired Brad Tingey. The Panthers, paced by the 5-10 junior's 30-point performance, had just ended Mullan's hopes of a state championship with a 12-point victory in Thursday's second game.

"We practiced hard for this one," Tingey gassed. "We had a good scouting report on them and we knew they were slow to cut you off at the baseline. It worked."

What worked for Carey, now 17-6, was a combination of factors — crisp passing, hustle, desire, accuracy at the free throw line and Tingey felt might've been a little overconfidence by the Tigers. "We felt maybe they thought they were better than us," Tingey said. "But we worked very hard in practice, very hard."

The Panthers never trailed in their first state tourney showing in five years.

Free throws by Andy O'Crowley and Mark Conrad and a pair of fielders by Tingey gave the Panthers an early 6-2 lead and although Mullan was able to tie the game three times, John Drager's First District champions were never to lead.

Both teams used a run-and-gun style of offense and both had some early accuracy problems. But Carey started to find the range at the end of the first quarter and moved to a 12-6 lead after eight minutes.

Mullan, behind the 26-point showing of senior Eddie Nevell, bounced right back and the second quarter resembled a track meet with Carey holding a 20-25 lead at the half.

Fouls became a key factor before the first half was over, as O'Crowley, one of the Panthers' key rebounders at 6-2, went to the bench with four fouls with 5:04 left.

Carey was able to stay with the Tigers on the boards and back-to-back rebound baskets by O'Crowley put Carey to a four-point lead, 35-31, after Mullan had tied the game for what proved to be the last time.

Genesee 58, Cascade 57

"Sometimes people need to be reminded how easily a lead can be lost," said Genesee Coach Orzie Kamikberg, as he described his club's 14-point spread with two minutes to play with Cascade, only to see it evaporate to one.

That, at least, held, as last year's A-3 contender put away unheralded Cascade in first-round action.

Part of the reason for the sudden turn in events was Cascade's effective press, which forced three turnovers during the rally.

Up by more than a dozen points, the press allowed Genesee's Justin Hill and Dave Baxter to connect on field goals.

With just 14 seconds left, Cascade's leading scorer, Tim Hamilton, stole the ball at midcourt and made a layin to bring the Ramblers within a field goal, 57-55.

Genesee's Jeff Becker went to the line to make one of two shots for a 58-55 lead. With four seconds to play, Rambler Scott Battles hit a short jumper to narrow the spread to a point. Genesee inbounded the ball carefully, however, and the game was history.

In the first period a five-minute scoring dry spell by Genesee spelled instant danger for the Bulldogs, as Cascade built a seven-point lead, mainly on inside stuff by sophomore Bryce Stevens.

Unfortunately for the Ramblers, Stevens also collected fouls, thanks mainly to Genesee's Joe Cavanaugh who ended up with a game-high 23 points. With Stevens out, Cavanaugh started to run wild. At the half, Genesee had battled to a four-point lead.

While Cascade attempted to collapse on Cavanaugh in the second half, Genesee would have its own troubles coming in the final two minutes.

Friends 56, Castleford 51

Greenleaf Friends Academy, favored to repeat its performance as a state champion, overcame a strong Castleford effort in the first half.

A 22-point third period by the Grizzlies dashed the upset hopes of many loyal Wolves fans in the Twin Falls High gym, as George Redmon and Steve Davis hit for a total of 32 points in the win.

Redmon, a quick senior guard, hit 13 of his 17 points in the second half, while Davis cashed his checks in on the inside and finished with 15.

Up by only a point at the half, Greenleaf found itself led by the local club four times. In fact, the Grizzlies have to hang on to what they could get in the first period, as Castleford, like a team possessed, hit three field goals to start the game.

Castleford's Alan Sample's rebounding kept Friends' Tony Wheeler and Davis at bay and the Wolves took a 12-10 lead after eight minutes.

The second half began with Friends' 6-4 Jeff Dillon leaping up between two defenders to put his team in the lead three. That was to be the closest Castleford would get.

Redmon began his streak, hitting impossible shots from the 20- to 25-foot range, unchallenged at first by the Wolves' outside players. A pair of steals by Friends kept Castleford off guard, and before the Wolves knew what hit them, the Grizzlies reeled off four field goals.

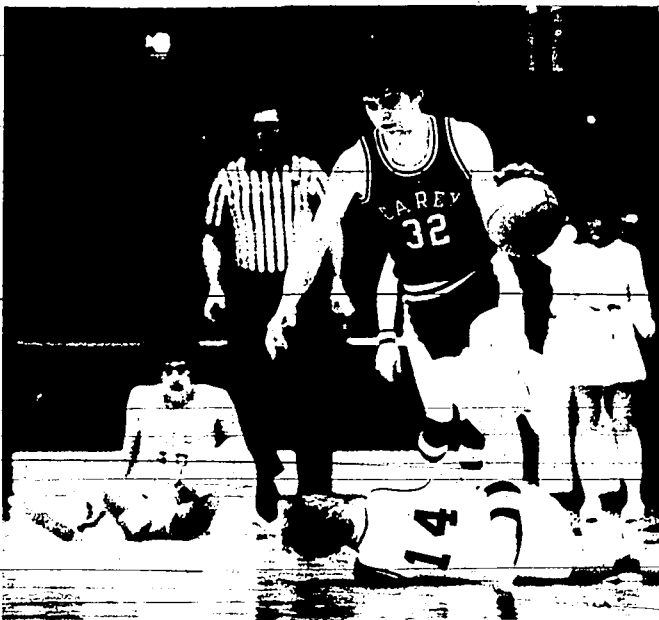

Castleford, now losing the war beneath the basket, narrowed the 11-point spread to four during the period, but Redmon's constant badgering on the free-throw line (5-of-9), added up.

With Castleford's Rick Vulk in foul trouble in the final period, Friends rebounded itself on the short side of team rebounds, 46-30. That net, coupled with Redmon's hot hands and Wheeler's tips, put the visiting club in the driver's seat.

Friends is in its fourth state appearance and the second under head Coach John Ehrlich.

"They're a kind of run and gun team," Ehrlich said of Castleford. "That forced us a little out of our game. We just can't do that."

On the other side, Castleford's senior Kelly Murphy, in his first state appearance as a coach, wasn't upset with his club's performance.

Carey's Andy O'Crowley leaves Mullan's Van Hegbloom (14) and Brian Finley in his path

"It's hard to pick the turning point where we fell," he said, "but it was probably when Vulk got in foul trouble. We lost a lot of boards after that."

S. River 47, Rockland 33

Facing a big height disadvantage, Rockland tried to work the ball inside most of the game and came up short by 14 points as Salmon River played tough defense inside and scored from the outside.

Salmon River, going 6-5, 6-3, 6-3 across the front, used the outside shooting of 5-9 Bryan Bagley to take control midway in the second quarter en route to its 22nd win in 26 games.

Bagley hit three consecutive 20-footers midway in the first quarter to rally his team from a 6-2 deficit and into a 13-11 lead at the end of eight minutes.

Bagley, a junior, had nine of the 13 points in the first quarter and he didn't slow down much in the second quarter. He and 5-8 Ray Stowers each hit two fielders to forge a 21-13 margin as Rockland went five minutes without scoring.

Salmon River kept the lead by a minimum of seven points in the third quarter and led by as much as 16. Wade Anderson had 10 points to pace Rockland, which fell to 17-8.

Carlton becomes top dog

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies have reached "an economic understanding" with Steve Carlton that would make the four-time Cy Young Award winner the highest-paid pitcher in baseball, team president Bill Giles said Thursday.

Under terms of the agreement, Carlton, 35, would make $1.5 million for the 1983 season, higher than the $1 million earned by Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Giles said Carlton would make $1 million a year for the 1984, 1985 and 1986 seasons under the contract. After 1986, the Phillies will have the option to renew the pact on a year-to-year basis.

"Steve deserves to be the highest paid pitcher because he is the best," Giles said. "I thought it was very important to have some peace of mind for Steve and peace of mind for us that he would be around with us."

Giles said a few disagreements over language still have to be ironed out, but it was expected that Carlton would sign the contract soon.

Carlton, the Phillies' ace left-hander, was the major league's only 20-game winner last season, going 23-11, and also led the National League in strikeouts, complete games, shutouts and innings pitched. He won the Cy Young Award for a record fourth time.

Giles said terms of the contract were essentially the same as in a verbal agreement made between himself and Dave Landfield, Carlton's agent, last January, but the total money involved was shifted.

Landfield backed out of the earlier agreement last week, saying he was concerned that its terms would not allow Carlton to be baseball's highest-paid pitcher. Under that pact, Carlton would have made $700,000 this year and $1.5 million next year.

"I told Dave when I walked in, 'Let's forget everything. Let's not worry about what was written or what was said. Let's just start all over and get this thing done,'" Giles said.

New league won't sign non-seniors for the time being

GRAPEVINE, Texas (UPI) — The United States Football League assured a meeting of college football officials Thursday it would not try to recruit anyone underclassmen immediately, but did not promise the restraint was permanent.

Officials from the Pac 10, the Big 8, the Southwest Conference, and the Southeast Conference met for four hours behind closed doors with USFL commissioner Chet Simmons to discuss the league's recruiting policies.

The group emerged after four hours in a conference room at a Dallas-Fort Worth Airport hotel with little to say about commitments taken by either side in the recruiting dispute.

College officials have been critical of the USFL's signing last week of Herschel Walker, a Heisman Trophy winning runningback at Georgia who had one year of collegiate eligibility remaining.

"Before Walker's signing of a multimillion dollar contract with the New Jersey Giants, no college underclassman had been recruited into professional football."

Emory Ballard, head coach at Mississippi State, said the USFL officials and college coaches agreed to continue to search for a common good for both sides and said he believed Walker's signing would remain an isolated incident.

There was no long-term assurance by the USFL, though, that it might not again try to sign an underclassman if a satisfactory agreement could be reached with the college coaches.

Bengals' Ross jumps to Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Dan Ross, the All-Pro tight end of the Cincinnati Bengals, will be wearing a Boston Breakers uniform in 1984, club president Robert Caporale said Thursday.

And the new United States Football League club, which opens its season Sunday against the Tampa Bay Bandits, may still be in the running for the services of New England Patriots tight end Don Hasselbeck.

"We've signed a contract with him," Caporale said of Ross, adding the pact was for the 1984 through 1986 seasons.

He declined to discuss terms of the agreement, signed Wednesday amid confusion caused by a massive power outage in downtown Boston where the team's office is located.

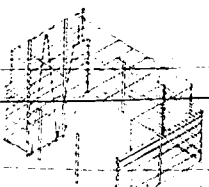

Published reports quoted Bengals general manager Mike Brown as saying his club was told by Boston agent, Tom Toner, that the Breakers offered a $1.5 million pact over four years.

Looking back

Two of the original cast of the Dilettantes first production in 1959, Marty Mead and Roger Vincent, below, are directing the chorus in this year's show, a repeat performance of "Carousel" which opens March 11. Other memorable scenes from the community theatre's 25 years include Mary Walker and Dr. Art Frantz in "My Fair Lady" in 1969, lower left; prayer scene from "Fiddler on the Roof," 1974, at right, and Brad Hickerson in the 1967 production "Finian's Rainbow." An estimated 3,000 Magic Valley residents have participated in some phase of the annual spring musicals during the last quarter century.

Dilettantes mark 25 years on local stages

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In 1958, Marty Mead of Twin Falls was working up a program, using songs from the musical "Carousel."

She asked Vern Hedner if he would sing the role of Billy Bigelow, thinking perhaps they could sing the numbers to the church club to which they both belonged.

"He got excited and said, 'Why don't we have a real production?'" Mead recalls. So late that year, the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley was organized, and Bert Sweet was asked to direct the show. He suggested holding a public audition.

A surprisingly large number of would-be actors turned out, and on March 5, 1959, the Dilettantes' premiere performance played to overflow crowds at the old O'Leary Junior High School.

Now 24 musicals later — that involved an estimated 3,000 Magic Valley residents — the Dilettantes will again stage "Carousel" for its 25th anniversary production. The show will be performed next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and the following week on Thursday through Saturday, March 17-19.

The initial show was launched on a shoestring. Mead says she and three other persons put up $100 collateral to obtain a loan from the bank to pay for the royalties.

Like any fledgling amateur group, actors and stage crew worried if anyone would come to see them perform. Three performances were scheduled, and the $120 tickets were not even designated for any certain night.

The first night's attendance was not so overwhelming, but by the final night, people were standing in the aisles, so it was decided to schedule the show according to Dr. Art Frantz, one of a handful of original members still active in the group.

As he recalls it, the decision to extend the performances drew mixed response from the Dilettantes, with the director and singer Jay Anderson "nearly coming to blows over that and other issues."

According to a Times-News clipping — in the well-kept Dilettante scrapbooks maintained by longtime historian and official photographer Helen Lee — approximately 1,600 people were turned away at the door, with a like number viewing the show the first three nights.

The old junior-high auditorium's 500 seats were filled to capacity 50 minutes before curtain time. Press clippings indicate that approximately 3,300 persons saw those six performances in March 1959.

The new theater group made $2,300 that year, $1,000 of which was donated the following month to launch funds for a civic auditorium.

Frantz and Hank Wills will be the only two veterans of the original cast on stage this year; but Mead and Roger Vincent, who played the lead roles in 1959, are directing the chorus.

Few such community groups have survived as long in Idaho, according to Betsy Bidwell of the Idaho Arts Commission, although the Dilettantes are not the oldest. The Boise Little Theatre has been in existence longer than 25 years, and the Coeur d'Alene Theater is 23 years old, she says.

However, considering the high mortality rate of most amateur theater groups, including at least three that have flourished and died in Twin Falls in the last quarter-century, the Dilettantes' durability record is impressive.

While providing polished live performances each year of well-known musicals, complete with pit orchestra, is a significant community contribution in itself, the Dilettantes also have been the impetus for many other cultural developments.

The Magic Valley Symphony was formed in the fall of 1959 from the nucleus of musicians who played in that first "Carousel" orchestra. The symphony observe its 25th anniversary next year.

Several other local cultural groups, such as the Magic Valley Chorale and Northwest Opera Association, have Dilettantes among their staunchest workers, as area residents from all walks of life have welcomed the opportunity to participate in all phases of the performing arts.

Throughout the quarter-century, the Dilettantes, incorporated as a non-profit group, never have had any government grants, a policy of which many members are proud. The only financial support has come from ticket sales.

When there are capacity crowds, the group has made money; when the crowds have been slim, the group has gone into the "red," since production rights, costumes, sets and rental for the hall cost the same whether the auditorium is full or half-empty.

Some years, the group has realized up to $3,000 profit; other years, equally good shows have been financial disasters. Under pictures from the 1970 production of "Mame" in the group's scrapbook is a cryptic notation: "Too bad we lost money — it was a good show."

But over the many good years there has been enough profit to "pay back" the community some $25,000 in scholarships to youths to study in the arts, according to Jim LaGrone of Castleford, who has been involved in 24 shows.

However, long-time Dilettantes view as probably their major extra achievement their part in obtaining a civic auditorium for Twin Falls.

Because the old O'Leary Junior High School had such limited seating and stage capacity, after the first year, the spring musicals were staged at Filer High School for nine years.

Mead recalls that the O'Leary stage was so shallow there was no room to walk behind the backdrop, so actors had to go down through the basement if they had to enter from the opposite side of the stage.

So, the Dilettantes pushed efforts to obtain an adequate performing-arts facility in Twin Falls. A Civic Auditorium Association, headed by Willis, was formed in April 1959.

In 1964, the group launched a community-wide fund drive, which raised nearly a half-million dollars for the badly needed facility. The theater group donated $4,000 as seed money and later gave another $5,000 directly to the auditorium fund, LaGrone says.

Since the College of Southern Idaho had been started by that time, the auditorium association joined forces in 1966 with CSI, whose president, the late James Taylor, obtained additional federal funds. The Flee Arts Center became a reality in November 1968.

While it has been argued that the college would have built an auditorium eventually, the community effort, in which the Dilettantes played a leading role, meant the facility became a reality much sooner, according to Willis.

The 1969 show, "My Fair Lady," marked the first Dilettantes production in the new CSI auditorium, where shows have been given each spring since.

Over the years, there have been many hits, with several thousand persons participating in the many facets of a stage production.

Favorites naturally are a subjective choice, but the ones I recall best — from the vantage point of a reviewer, member of the audience or orchestra pit — are "Brigadoon" in 1961, with the lovely scenery produced by Earl and Dorcas Peck; "Oklahoma" in 1963, the first to be directed by a professional, Paul Kliss; "Finian's Rainbow" in 1967, with Brad Hickerson as the delightful leprechaun; "My Fair Lady" with memorable lead roles by Mary Walker and Franz, and its toe-tapping jig to "Get Me to the Church on Time"; and "Fiddler on the Roof," the 1974 show in which Jim Latham led an outstanding cast with his poignant portrayal of a Russian Jew.

While recognition and prestige accrue to those in lead roles, and to a lesser degree, to all the actors on stage, it is a basic theater fact that performances would never occur without the unsung and unseen helpers.

Part of the appeal of an amateur community theater group is that it provides opportunity for participation. A wide variety of skills — from wielding a hammer on production sets, to singing in the chorus, to playing in the pit orchestra, to costume and makeup work, to serving as rehearsal accompanists and the vital script girl — are needed.

And, as LaGrone points out, hundreds of other persons whose names never made the printed programs, have worked on ticket sales, ushered or come in to fix hair and other myriad details needed in a "professional" show.

The Dilettantes are truly a representative Magic Valley group, providing opportunity for many to "dabble in the arts," as well as excellent community theater.

So let's all help celebrate the group's real achievements, as it begins its second quarter-century, by attending this year's "Carousel" production.

Book details California coastal trips

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — From the time in 1510 when a Spanish author wrote of a mythical island named California, rich in gold, near "Terrestrial Paradise" and inhabited only by women and "griffins," adventurers have flocked to the state's Pacific shore.

At the time of explorer Hernando Cortes, California was densely populated in some areas by Native Americans with more than 100 dialects of 21 languages.

Then came the Spanish priests and farmers, the Russian fur traders, the English merchants and American whalers, until 1849 when the cry of "gold" drew thousands of fortune hunters to the coastal settlements.

Through the decades the disparate sections of California's coast developed pell-mell in the flux of stylish popularity or waning interest.

Then in 1972 the people of California approved Proposition 20, the Coastal Initiative, creating the state Coastal Commission to regulate the use and future preservation of the 1,100 mile-long California coast for the enjoyment of all Californians.

In honor of the tenth anniversary of the commission's existence, the University of California Press, Berkeley, issued this month a hardcover edition of the "California Coastal Access Guide," with every thing the 20th century explorer of the coast could need.

The hardbound edition is expanded and updated from earlier paperback versions, with an original Ansel Adams photograph gracing the cover.

CSI exhibit shows arts new direction

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

TWIN FALLS — Times do-

change. The idea of a museum exhibiting signed and numbered prints is no longer considered shocking. In fact, good prints from recognized artists can show their talent as well as original lithographs, etchings, mezzotints, oil and acrylic canvases, line drawings or watercolors.

The Herrett Museum, on the College of Southern Idaho campus, presently is displaying, until the end of March, 48 prints by three artists. This graphic art show is called "Magic Realism."

This show makes one aware that the creation of art practically has reversed from what it was a few years ago. Take, for instance, Jackson Pollock's duc painting and dripping, de Kooning's ripping and re-pasting, Matisse's paper-cutting and hanging and the silk screen-transferred photographic art of Warhol and Hauschberg.

Our new art is becoming precise and accurate again, instead of abstract and speculative. The Herrett Museum has brought this message to us.

Visual art always has been, and probably always will be, mainly an affair of objects in solitude, negotiated and made valid in privacy.

A perfect example of this is the work of Korean artist Kye-Baik

Hwang. He throws everyday objects into space — grass, ladder, hankie, moon, butterfly, metronome, whatever. The mezzotint medium he uses provides him the perfect ground for his mysterious creations.

Hwang's "For a Little Butterfly," which shows a metronome and a little moth-type butterfly, makes this reviewer think of Beethoven's piano study, "Fleur-de-lis."

Contrast this with Tomoe Yokoi, originally from Japan. She gives us pictures, in rich tones, of cherries, peaches and other edibles in containers such as glasses, dishes and boxes. Her art has been said to reflect the influence of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

Along the south wall of the museum is a partial showing of an American from New York, Thomas O'Donohue, his name. He could be a book illustrator.

He has an impressive understanding for etching and aquatint, and his laughing viol, as well as his town-mapped globe, display surrealistic ideas. This is probably what gives him classification in an art show. It is questionable, though, whether he belongs in this one.

The Herrett Museum should receive accolades for showing us a type of collector art. And through this show, we can better understand a special type of artistic concept and performance.

Seniors have spelling bee

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bill O'Connor won his first spelling bee at 58, beating fellow nursing home residents up to age 77.

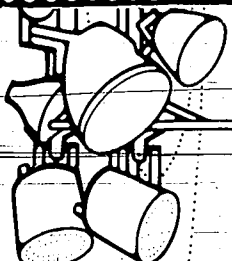

"I never entered a spelling bee before. It was a lot of fun. It gives you a sense of participation and challenge," O'Connor said. "I love to read and I guess that partly helps." O'Connor said he felt "wonderful" to receive the first-place trophy with a bee on top.

The 17 finalists who competed in Wednesday's bee were among hundreds of residents from 70 nursing homes affiliated with the Illinois

Council on Long Term Care, a non-profit group that coordinates social activities for the elderly and handicapped.

"Honestly, they're a lot like children. They're very competitive, as children would be. They're ecstatic. They've been looking forward to it for weeks," spokesman Katie Broersen said.

The contest lasted one hour. Contestants sat in two rows of chairs and did not have to stand at a podium. The words were pronounced and used in a sentence, if requested.

What's what

Q. Why did a certain kind of cook stove get the name "range"?

A. The Pennsylvania Dutch applied the word to a six-plate stove. Implications was it had a greater range of cooking space than the older four-plate stove.

Q. What does the "limited" after a firm name mean?

A. Limited liability. In a British limited company, the liability of each partner or stockholder is limited to the amount of that person's investment or to an amount fixed by a guarantee.

Q. How do you account for the fact that a prospector's chances of striking gold today are greater statistically than those of an early California prospector?

A. Better maps.

BRIDAL SHOP

Claim is no other bridal shop in the nation sells more wedding gowns than the Salvation Army's store in Los Angeles.

Animal trainers contend a porpoise is smarter than a raccoon.

Not counting Hawaii, that state most nearly surrounded by water is New Jersey.

Benjamin Franklin taught guitar lessons. To pretty girls, mostly.

Consider the praying mantis. That creature puts away its own weight in animal matter over the course of a single day. At least.

LOVE AND WAR

Q. Ask your Love and War man what proportion of the men remain physically active in romance at the age of 60.

A. About 13 percent, according to our L. and W. man's files. They show further that 14 out of 20 can be so described at age 70.

No game has had more books written about it than chess.

Q. The woman in which occupation is least likely to be divorced?

A. Home economics teacher.

Most restaurants figure to get two-and-a-half gallons of coffee out of a pound of ground beans.

Bumper justice prevails

VASHON ISLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Bumper sticker justice is alive and well on Vashon Island. Just ask convicted drunken driver Harley Hake. Hake, 67, who carned through the rural town of Vashon Island New Year's Eve after downing rum and Kool-Aid with beer chasers, will be reminded of the fateful drive every time he gets into his car, thanks to an edict by Vashon District Court Judge Philip Schwarz.

The judge has ordered bumper stickers for the two-time offender, reading "This car owned by a convicted drunk driver."

Although the retired ferry officer swore in court he has quit drinking, the judge also ordered him to serve two weeks at the Seattle North Rehabilitation Center and pay a $250 fine.

Bumper-sticker justice was born in May 1981 when Schwarz first convicted Hake of drunken driving. The stickers' legality has been upheld by King County Superior Court.

Schwarz, who said he believes the bumper sticker will be effective even though it failed after Hake's first conviction, printed up 49 other bumper stickers for future convicted drunken drivers, who like Hake, elected not to go to an alcoholism treatment program.

Headphone advice offered

By RICH WARREN
Chicago Sun-Times

Q. I received the Koss Musicbox 6783 for Christmas and enjoy it thoroughly, but I am starting to realize the problem with batteries you mentioned. My question, however, is whether I can plug the earphones into my Quadraflex receiver. The specs with the Koss aren't clear and I don't want to blow out the earphones.

A. First, let me say that although I still find the Koss Musicbox a fine performer, the enormous battery costs make it an uneconomical choice. It's bad enough that AAA cells are some of the most expensive on the market, but the Koss uses 4 and devours them like most people munch peanuts. Many newer AM/FM stereo personal portables use either AA cells or only 2 AAA with lower drain circuits.

Virtually all earphones, normally referred to as stereo headphones, or in Koss shorthand, stereophones, are compatible with virtually all receivers or amplifiers with headphone jacks. Koss conveniently supplies a physical adapter that permits the miniature phone to plug into the standard 1/4-inch stereo phone plug in your receiver. Provided you don't listen at ear-splitting volumes, there will be no damage to your headphones.

If for any reason you own an amplifier or receiver without a headphone jack, you should be a bit more cautious. Most headphone jacks are slightly attenuated to avoid damage to headphones. If you wire them directly to the speaker terminals, you must be careful to keep the volume control pretty far down. In any case, do not leave headphones plugged in when not in use, as the thump that's often heard when the receiver or amplifier is turned on and off may damage them.

There is some evidence that continuous use of Walkman-type stereos at excessive volume levels can cause permanent hearing damage. The key phrase here is "excessive levels." Everyone breathed a sigh of relief when the Walkman-type units replaced the "boom boxes" on the street and on buses. Now you may notice that the same people who used to top along with boxes blaring still are an annoyance with sound blaring from their headphones.

Don't throw away your headphones. Listening at low levels has not been proven to cause damage. My personal rule of thumb is that if you remove your stereo headphones, hold them a foot away and still can distinctly hear sound from them, they're too loud. If you must turn up the volume to drown out environmental noise, you might be playing your personal portable too loudly without knowing it.

Gayle Wagner-Barigar's work makes her one of our best

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

TWIN FALLS — It cannot be said too strongly that Idaho has more creative talent to offer than ever before.

Idaho artists increasingly can be seen roaming the sidelines of area museums, theaters and art shows, picking up on the developments and hoping that in some way, someday they can become part of the scene, creatively.

One of these talented Idaho artists, somewhat unrecognized until now, is Gayle Wagner-Barigar.

In Buhl, at the HeArt Gallery, a show has opened of Wagner-Barigar oil canvases, watercolors, pen and inks, and commercial graphic designs. The show will remain there until March 23.

The works on display, which establish Wagner-Barigar's genius at "painting," are diverse in treatment and subject. She uses images and painting devices taken from sources far and near, high and low, popular and arcane, from life-drawing classes and history books, and all of them relate to her life.

She was born to an Idaho mother in San Francisco in 1938. Because of her father's profession — as a buyer and merchandising manager for the May Co. — she traveled around the country.

From San Francisco, she landed in Los Angeles, and from there, she moved with her family to San Diego, San Antonio, Texas, and Iowa. She married in 1964 and raised three sons in Sacramento.

"My maternal grandfather was a mining man in Murray, Idaho. We still have property there," she says. "My artistic and creative tendencies probably come from my grandmother, Annette Rudy. She was a very respected sculptor and painter in her time. She was so funny when I was growing up, because she refused to let me or anyone else call her grandmother."

Gayle loves and respects her grandmother, but says that she never identified with her until recently. "She allowed me to do so because she's 90 years old and doesn't mind."

Gayle mostly is interested in faces, but ironically, most of the time she paints what can be called abstracts. She claims that her influence comes from Picasso, Monet and Matisse. And "Jackson Pollack turned me on to realizing one didn't have to always paint trees and flowers."

Wagner-Barigar is a big painter; she likes large canvases. "I can see all of the cells and blood vessels."

See her fantasy painting of the enormous heart at the show and notice all of the detailed muscle and vascular routing.

The landscapes are something else. She is nostalgic without being silly.

Then, there is "Cabbage I" and "Cabbage II." In both, she depicts cabbage leaves graphically. Although it recently was purchased by a Magic Valley resident, "Cabbage II" is the piece of resistance of the show in Buhl.

The artist's paintings appear in homes far and wide — Paris, London, New York, Los Angeles, to name a few.

One of the artist's favorite subjects right now is children's books. She is helping write and illustrate a child's book about vegetables in a garden. A few of her illustrations can be seen at the Buhl show.

In developing her career, Wagner-Barigar divides her talents into extremely large spaces. Her basic approach lies in contrasting fantasy and realistic qualities, using shapes, forms, colors, textures and

Steve Swank and Rick Strickland

Renaissance sets folk music concert

Singer Tenley Stephens and the duo of Swank and Strickland will perform at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts in Twin Falls Wednesday. The concert is the sixth in a series of shows designed as a showcase for Idaho talent.

Stephens says she was born and raised everywhere, giving her a diverse background in America's folk music. She was exposed to traditional music from Virginia to New England, before moving to Idaho and becoming involved with music here.

She teaches guitar at the Academy and helps run the organization. She has performed at The Sandpiper and Brickside Pub and will appear at The Sandpiper March 14.

Steve Swank was born in Boise and now lives in Fairfield. He studied guitar at University of Idaho and started writing songs about six years ago. He and Strickland recorded "Like Living This Way" on the Idaho Sampler album recorded in the Mountain Bluebird label.

He also wrote "Dreams and Promises" and "Dreaming My Way Across the Camas Prairie Tonight." Rick Strickland also attended UI, where he studied cello. He met Swank at Moscow, but it wasn't until 10 years later that an accidental encounter at a bar in Hagerman led to the forming of the duo.

Strickland is director of the

Tenley Stephens

Academy and a part owner of the building.

Swank and Strickland plan to a record an album this summer. They will perform at the Sandpiper March 15-19.

There will be two shows for the Wednesday concert at 7 and 9 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students. Reservations are available by calling 734-0719.

The Academy is located at 505 Second Ave.

The burgers battle on

MIAMI (UPI) — Burger King renewed the heated "Battle of the Burgers" Thursday with a second television advertising campaign that grills arch-rival McDonald's.

Dubbed Project B1B, for "Broiling is Better," Burger King is taking on McDonald's, the largest restaurant chain in the world, in a six-week national ad campaign.

Miami-based Burger King, the second largest hamburger chain, will spend up to $15 million on the ads, which claim consumers prefer its "flame-broiled" hamburgers to McDonald's fried burgers.

Burger King planned to launch the campaign Thursday night in selected markets in the Northeast and Midwest with a 10-second "teaser" commercial, and follow up Monday night on network television with 30-second commercials.

If the campaign is successful, it may be extended to 12 weeks, company officials said.

Project B1B follows the $20 million Operation BOB, "Battle of the Burgers," which was launched last fall and claimed Burger King's hamburgers were superior to those of McDonald's and No. 3 Wendy's.

McDonald's and Wendy's took Burger King to court to get the campaign halted. The suits were dropped when the ads were phased out.

Burger King officials said they do not fear the reaction by competitors over the new campaign. In one ad, Burger King not only talks about McDonald's products, but also shows the exterior of a McDonald's restaurant.

"We never said we wouldn't be controversial in the future," said Kyle Craig, Burger King's executive vice president of marketing.

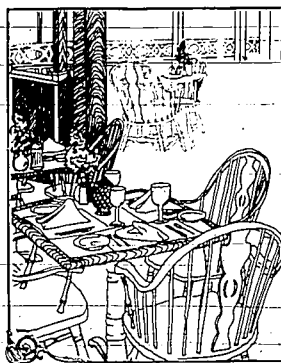

spaces. To understand her is to understand her mind, and that probably will never happen.

Wagner-Barigar is intense. She sees things as few can see them, layered as a pool — water ripple on top, the depths, life in between and the un-touchable bottom.

In her art, there are principal vantage points from which to view the work, each marked by a line or "phrase," which help you partially enter her thoughts. She can handle domestic architectural forms, but she adds to them animals or fantastical plants, rocks, trees, flowers and water.

She creates a microcosm of the world she sees. Her influences are many, and it's fun to try to figure them out.

Gayle Wagner-Barigar is an artistic and creative roamer, and predictions have it that she is one of the best we have right now.

Glen Nelson and his Last Country Band at his studio

Area gets recording studio

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Glen Nelson and his Last Country Band dream of making it to the top of the record charts.

But the group is realistic enough to know that it's a long haul.

So, the group has released a record on its own label, hoping that a bigger company will take notice.

The site of Nelson's recording studio is unassuming — the basement of his new home outside Twin Falls. Not quite finished, the studio lies among the thick carpeting, couches and toys that belong to his children.

About four years ago, he began collecting a "piece of a time," the expensive equipment for his small studio.

At his former studio, off Blue Lakes Boulevard South, he recorded demonstration tapes for many area hands to play for booking agents or record publishers. He also recorded the flip side of the band's single, "Your Love Won't Leave Me."

At his home, off Skyline Avenue, The Last Country Band — which has been together in one form or another for several years — recorded "Out of Control," the main tune of the record. Written by Nelson and Dyrk Godby, the song took several months to record, using several tracks to mix the right amount of instruments, vocals and effects.

"Out of Control" is a comment — in the modern Western mode — on a loss of American greatness.

"There's trouble down on Wall Street, trouble in our house... selling off our country to pay the debts we owe," sings Nelson. In a field of mournful guitars, Nelson had 500 records printed in Wyoming, on the group's month-old Mesa label. However, Nelson and Andy Clett of Twin Falls, another member of the group, don't expect to make the money on the venture.

"A single is like advertising; people want you to give them one," Nelson says.

But their release is a definite step to bigger things, Clett says. When a larger record company signs a band, it pushes the record on the buying public.

For now, Glenn, Andy and the other two members of the band are doing their own publicity, by leaving the record at clubs and restaurants, and at radio stations. And the band is on its own tour of Magic Valley and Wood River clubs, all in the name of promotion.

The record, which is available in some area stores, helps to "get our name around" and known, Clett says.

"If you get a regional hit, then it's easier to appeal to a record company," Nelson says.

Besides drawing the eye of a larger recording firm, the name recognition will help with the sale of the album the band is working on, Nelson says. The longer-disc will contain a little of everything, he says, "some honky-tonk, easy-listening stuff."

A self-taught recording engineer, Nelson says he made a living in the "real world" by selling insurance and then working for a finance company, after obtaining an accounting degree. All the while, he played with the band and wrote his own songs.

Then when he became a full-time musician, he became unemployed, Nelson says. Long road-trips for the band are out because "we all have families to support."

The role of musician and recording artist seems to fit Nelson well. With his dark beard, deep-pitched voice and large Western belt buckle, it's hard to imagine he was ever anything but a musician.

However, looking the part and becoming nationally known are two different things.

Yet, Nelson and Clett seem to have that show-business grit that enables them to fight uphill in a business that they admit is tough.

"We don't really know what's going to happen to it (the record)," But Nelson says, the route they've selected to stardom is "not impossible."

Miffed songwriter lampoons Post Office

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Manhattan songwriter whose mail wasn't delivered one day has taken the Postal Service to task in song, saying while snow and rain may not stop a mailman's rounds "gross inefficiency can."

Robert Warren, 67, said he wrote the song because "maybe humor will do more to get the post office working than all our screaming."

The eight-verse song, entitled "Hail, All Hail the U.S. Mail," starts off saying "a letter mailed from Houston to Dallas took 20 days to arrive after a stopover in Vermont."

The idea came to Warren last October when his mail did not arrive one day because temporary letter carriers stopped working at 3 p.m. "They just didn't want to work overtime," said Warren, who works out of his apartment. "I blame the unions for some of it, but mostly I blame the government for hiring unqualified people."

Warren got so mad he wrote and sang the song. So far, he has made 6,000 records.

"It's getting air time in several cities," he said during an interview while playing the record. Among stations airing it are WNEW in New York and WGN in Chicago.

One verse goes:

"Hail, all hail the U.S. Mail!
The service is hitting the fan.
Neither snow nor rain shall stay their rounds."

Burgess inefficiency can."

Since doing the record, Warren's mail service is still bad, but he has not had a repeat of the no-delivery problem.

Commenting on Warren's efforts, a spokesman for the American Postal Workers Union said, "It's easy to make jobs. But if you want to talk seriously, let's talk efficiency. The U.S. Postal Service is the most efficient in the entire world."

Warren calls the agency "the postal (dis)service" and said a TV ad campaign in which postal clerks say how good they was "the quintessential definition of chutzpah."

Brief reviews

From Times-News wire services

48 HRS.: Eddie Murphy and Nick Nolte star as a con and a cop on the track of some cop-killers in a hip, violent action picture that is a rousing cross between "The Defiant Ones" and "The French Connection." Directed by the talented Walter Hill, who makes gunfire seem more lively than it has in recent years. R. 3½ stars.

GANDHI: Richard Attenborough's labor of love about the Indian lawyer (Ben Kingsley) who became the beloved spiritual and political leader of India compares with the classic films "Lawrence of Arabia" and "Dr. Zhivago" in its ability to paint a strong human story on a very large canvas. Kingsley's portrayal is done so well that there is a genuine feeling of Gandhi on the screen. With Geraldine Barr, Sir John Gielgud and Trevor Howard. Rated PG. 4 stars.

LORDS OF DISCIPLINE: David Keith stars as a cadet in a South Carolina military academy in 1964 who discovers a lot of hypocrisy in the school's standards. Rated R. 2 stars.

SIX WEEKS: Mary Tyler Moore and Dudley Moore star in an effective tearjerker about a little girl with a fatal illness. What makes the film work beyond its maudlin angle is that Dudley Moore creates a charming, witty and offbeat character who makes us smile before the sadness. PG. 3 stars.

THE STING II. This sequel to the original con game stars Jackie Gleason and Mac Davis in the Paul Newman and Robert Redford roles. Rated PG. 4 stars.

TOOTLES: More than the year's funniest film, "Tootsie" also is a celebration of the actor's life and a sly comment on sexual role-playing with Dustin Hoffman in a brilliant, double role as an actor so desperate for work he takes a job as actress without anyone on the soap opera knowing he's a man. Of all of the holiday pictures, this is the one to see first. PG. 4 stars.

THE VERDICT: Paul Newman stars as a down-and-out lawyer who gets one last chance to redeem himself in arguing on behalf of the victim of medical malpractice. As good as Newman is in the role, the film really works because of David Mamet's cynical script and tough supporting performances by James Mason and Jack Warden as attorneys. A fine courtroom drama. R. 3½ stars.

WITHOUT A TRACE: A 7-year-old leaves for school and doesn't return in this thought-provoking drama featuring Kate Neill as the intelligent and vulnerable mother and Judy Hirsch as the unrelenting detective who pursues the case. Directed by Stanley Jaffe. Rated PG. 3½ stars.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Simple style is like white light. It is complex but its complexity is not obvious." Anatole France.

DECLARER has a choice of suits to start in his play of today's "teetering game." If he has any style at all, he will choose the suit that offers the extra chance.

DECLARER can count seven top tricks and his decision rests with establishing either major suit. If both suits split 3-3, all will be well. If neither suit splits 3-3, prospects will not be too good. Nevertheless, there is an extra chance if declarer chooses to establish the heart suit.

If declarer goes wrong and plays three rounds of spades, the game goes down quickly. Spades fail to break and there's no time left to try the hearts.

The heart suit offers the better chance. Declarer has a 50-50 chance of breaking the heart suit. If the suit doesn't break 3-3, there's always the chance that East will hold a doubleton queen, or the queen and three others.

The game makes if declarer wins dummy's diamond king and leads a low heart toward his jack. East must take his queen or lose it and declarer's game is safe unless diamonds are 5-1. East's diamond return won't by declarer's ace, the heart-jack is cashed to bring
